Topic: Environment | Words: 1732 | Pages: 6

Changes in climate patterns are influenced by the advancement of research and innovative characteristics. Science, technology, and society are examined in depth in the paper and how the general public sees the course's subject matter. It is being discussed how science and technology's dynamic elements are linked with a wide range of climate-related developments, both positive and destructive. The weather on Earth continues to undergo tremendous changes. However, the existing measures taken by the authorities are inadequate. Politicians and citizens must work together to plan to preserve our planet for future generations.
