transformation from Indigenous lands into the national territories of Argentina and Chile Drawing on evidence from archives and digital repositories John Soluri traces the circulation of furs and fibers to explore how the power of fashion stretched far beyond Europe s houses of haute couture to entangle the fates of Indigenous hunters migrant workers and textile manufacturers with those of fur seals guanacos and sheep at the end of the world From the nineteenth century rise of commercial hunting to twentieth century sheep ranching to contemporary conservation based tourism Soluri s narrative explains how struggles for control over the production of commodities and the reproduction of animals drove the social and environmental changes that tied Patagonia to global markets empires and wildlife conservation movements By exposing seams in national territories and global markets knit together by force this book provides perspectives and analyses vital for understanding contemporary conflicts over mass consumption the conservation of biodiversity and struggles for environmental justice in Patagonia and beyond
