The Carriage Trade Thomas A. Kinney, 2004-10-13 Co Winner of the 2005 Hagley Business History Book Prize given by the Business History Conference In 1926 the Carriage Builders National Association met for the last time signaling the automobile s final triumph over the horse drawn carriage Only a decade earlier carriages and wagons were still a common sight on every Main Street in America In the previous century carriage building had been one of the largest and most dynamic industries in the country In this sweeping study of a forgotten trade Thomas A Kinney extends our understanding of nineteenth century American industrialization far beyond the steel mill and railroad The legendary Studebaker Brothers Manufacturing Company in 1880 produced a hundred wagons a day one every six minutes Across the country smaller factories fashioned vast quantities of buggies farm wagons and luxury carriages Today if we think of carriage and wagon at all we assume it merely foreshadowed the automobile industry Yet the carriage industry epitomized a batch work approach to production that flourished for decades Contradicting the model of industrial development in which hand tools small firms and individual craftsmanship simply gave way to mechanized factories the carriage industry successfully employed small scale business and manufacturing practices throughout its history The Carriage Trade traces the rise and fall of this heterogeneous industry from the pre industrial shop system to the coming of the automobile using as case studies Studebaker the New York based luxury carriage maker Brewsters and dozens of smaller firms from around the country Kinney also explores the experiences of the carriage and wagon worker over the life of the industry Deeply researched and strikingly original this study contributes a vivid chapter to the story of America's industrial revolution

Consumer Choice in Historical Archaeology S.M. SpencerWood, 1987-06-30 Historical archaeology has made great strides during the last two decades Early archaeological reports were dominated by descriptions of features and artifacts while research on artifacts was concentrated on studies of topology technology and chronology Site reports from the 1960s and 1970s commonly expressed faith in the potential artifacts had for aiding in the identifying socioeconomic status differences and for understanding the relationships between the social classes in terms of their material culture An emphasis was placed on the presence or absence of porcelain or teaware as an indication of social status These were typical features in site reports written just a few years ago During this same period advances were being made in the study of food bone as archaeologists moved away from bone counts to minimal animal counts and then on to the costs of various cuts of meat Within the last five years our ability to address questions of the relationship between material culture and socioeconomic status has greatly expanded The essays in this volume present efforts toward measuring expenditure and consumption patterns represented by commonly recovered artifacts and food bone. These patterns of consumption are examined in conjunction with evidence from documentary sources that provide information on occupations, wealth levels, and ethnic affiliations of those that did the consuming. One of the refreshing aspects of these papers is that the authors are not afraid of documents and their use of them is not limited to a role of confirmation. Timberland Historical Archaeology Notes Brian D. Catalog Robin Cherry, 2008-09-04. Since 1872 when traveling salesman Aaron Montgomery Ward realized he could eliminate the middleman and sell goods directly to his customers, Americans have had an ongoing love affair with the mail order catalog which continues undiminished even in today's online driven world. The practical can find deals on furniture and clothing in L.L. Bean and Sears; the extravagant can consider his and hers matching helicopters, windmills, hot air balloons, and submarines in the Neiman Marcus Fantasy Catalog; those looking to get their pulses racing can browse Victoria's Secret and Abercrombie; while our inner swashbuckler can travel the world through the pages of the J.Peterman Owner's Manual where Moroccan caftans, Russian Navy t-shirts, and wooden water buckets from rural China entice the imagination. In Catalog: The Illustrated History of Mail Order Shopping, Robin Cherry traces the timeline of these snapshots from American history and discovers along the way how we dressed, decorated our houses, worked, played, and got around. From corsets to bell bottoms, from baby doll dresses and Doc Martens all the way to iPods, the history of these catalogs is the history of our lives and our culture. GIs during World War II were kept company by the models in the pages of lingerie catalogs; hockey goalies fashioned makeshift shin guards out of them during the Great Depression; and creative children across the country still play with homemade paper dolls cut from clothing catalogs. A number of celebrities got their start modeling for catalogs: Gregory Peck, Lauren Bacall, Katherine Heigl, Matthew Fox, and Angelina Jolie. Jimi Hendrix and Bob Dylan both got their first guitars from the Sears catalog. Organized into categories such as clothing, food, animals, and houses, author Robin Cherry explores the vivid stories behind Sears, Montgomery Ward, Lillian Vernon, Harry David, Jackson Perkins, and of course, 45 years of the Neiman Marcus Christmas Book. Insightful historical commentary places these catalogs in their social context, making this book a visual pleasure and a historically important piece of Americana.

Sears, Roebuck, U.S.A. Gordon Lee Weil, 1977. The biggest and the richest retail business in the U.S.A. is Sears, Roebuck and Co. Annual sales of Sears represent more than one percent of the Gross National Product. This book is the consumer's guide to how Sears does our business. More than that, this book is the fantastic story, characteristically American, of a business that grew so fast it almost toppled over on its own success, and of the three remarkable men who made it work.
