Sounding Authentic Joshua S. Walden, 2014 Sounding Authentic considers the intersecting influences of nationalism modernism and technological innovation on representations of ethnic and national identities in twentieth century art music Author Joshua S Walden discusses these forces through the prism of what he terms the rural miniature short violin and piano pieces based on folk song and dance styles This genre mostly inspired by the folk music of Hungary the Jewish diaspora and Spain was featured frequently on recordings and performance programs in the early twentieth century Furthermore Sounding Authentic shows how the music of urban Romany ensembles developed into nineteenth century repertoire of virtuosic works in the style hongrois before ultimately influencing composers of rural miniatures Walden persuasively demonstrates how rural miniatures represented folk and rural cultures in a manner that was perceived as authentic even while they involved significant modification of the original sources He also links them to the impulse toward realism in developing technologies of photography film and sound recording Sounding Authentic examines the complex ways the rural miniature was used by makers of nationalist agendas who sought folkloric authenticity as a basis for the construction of ethnic and national identities The book also considers the genre's reception in European diaspora communities in America where it evoked and transformed memories of life before immigration and traces how many rural miniatures were assimilated to the styles of American popular song and swing Scholars interested in musicology ethnography the history of violin performance twentieth century European art music the culture of the Jewish Diaspora and more will find Sounding Authentic an essential addition to their library

Against the Grain Anthony Marcus Lien, 2002 Although the art song was a favorite genre for American composers at the turn of the twentieth century its favor declined rapidly and significantly during and after the 1910s and for the rest of the first half of the century the genre held a marginalized place in the output of the most significant American composers Concomitant with this decline in song composition song publication also declined considerably after 1920 and a significant percentage of the songs published thereafter were authored by composers who specialized in songs and shorter works expressly intended for the domestic song market and written in a conservative musical idiom which appealed to mass audiences In contrast to these earlier declines the number of song concerts in New York City and Chicago increased steadily until about 1930 even as the percentage of song concerts to other concerts held steady After 1930 however the number and percentage of song concerts in these two cities declined as well The emergence of modernism on the musical landscape in the United States after 1915 was largely responsible for the decline in song publication and composition Among other things musical modernism valorized dissonance melodic fragmentation and objectivity these characteristics ran counter to the largely Romantic orientation of the art song with its long spun lyricism and subjectivity As a revision of current thought this study broadens the accepted corpus of modernist composers to include neo Romantics such as Samuel Barber whose music retained an essentially Romantic character but was frequently imbued with modernistic elements This study also shows that composers in certain stylistic professional and demographic categories wrote songs in significantly greater numbers than others For example in looking at the total song output of over 100 American and transplanted composers there was a direct correlation between musical style and song production the more progressive a composer's musical style the fewer songs he authored In addition to the impact of modernism on the art song these declines were also exacerbated by the art song's close association with other song types which lowered the art song's aesthetic credentials

Portuguese Piano Music Nancy Lee Harper,2013-01-10 As the first book of its kind Nancy Lee Harper s Portuguese Piano Music An Introduction and Annotated Bibliography fills the gap in the historical record of Portuguese piano music from its start in the 18th century to the present While although Spanish piano music is well documented owing to the reputation of such composers as Isaac Alb niz Enrique Granados and Manuel de Falla our knowledge of compositions in the tradition of Portuguese piano music has not fared as well barring the work of Carlos Seixas 1704 1742 This obscurity however reflects poorly on the history of early piano music in light of the many compositions written for fortepiano on behalf of the Portuguese court during the first half of the 18th century Indeed it was in the royal halls of King John V during his reign from 1706 to 1750 where the early fortepiano was
