Sudden Death H.E. Kulbertus, Hein J.J. Wellens, 2012-12-06 Over the last ten years it has become increasingly obvious that sudden death represents the major challenge confronting cardiology in the last part of the XXth Century Careful epidemiologic studies have established the magnitude of this overall important problem of public health The frequent association of sudden death with coronary artery disease has been demonstrated Some of the electrophysiologic mechanisms underlying lethal arrhythmias have been unveiled In addition clinical markers permitting identification of high risk individuals have emerged Finally different studies have raised some hope as to the ability of therapeutic interventions to protect these patients against a premature and possibly evitable demise Over the years a sizable amount of new and relevant information both basic and clinical has become available We felt therefore that a conference on sudden death might be timely It was decided to organize a small gathering during which experts from different disciplines in cardiology could sit together in a quiet retreat to share their knowledge and discuss issues pertaining to research and therapy that might be of benefit to patients The conference was held in Liege on May 7 8 and 9 1979 This three day meeting in which representatives from seven different countries participated was extremely stimulating The discussions were very lively and sometimes reflected the divergence of opinion which may persist on some topics

General Pathology John Brian Walter, Martin Israel, 1979 Vegetable Diseases Steven T. Koike, Peter Gladders, Albert Paulus, 2006-12-14 Our dependence on healthy vegetable crops as a reliable source of food transcends all barriers of nation and culture Consumers now demand excellent quality from the industry that produces large volumes of high quality vegetables to be sold locally regionally and shipped internationally The diseases that affect vegetables compromise such quality Advances in Cancer Research , 1990-02-22 Advances in Cancer Research
