Cross-Connection Control Manual U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, 2017-07-29 Plumbing cross connections which are defined as actual or potential connections between a potable and nonpotable water supply constitute a serious public health hazard There are numerous well documented cases where cross connections have been responsible for contamination of drinking water and have resulted in the spread of disease The problem is a dynamic one because piping systems are continually being installed altered or extended Control of cross connections is possible but only through thorough knowledge and vigilance Education is essential for even those who are experienced in piping installations fail to recognize cross connection possibilities and dangers All municipalities with public water supply systems should have cross connection control programs Those responsible for institutional or private water supplies should also be familiar with the dangers of cross connections and should exercise careful surveillance of their systems
