He chose running to be one of the places he revealed himself to me. Through my time alone on my feet the God of my parents and my grandparents became my God. It was on the road and on the trail that my relationship with God became personal. We developed a friendship which grew bigger than church and became deeper than rules of behavior. Page 4 of cover of New Mexico But when her father died of cancer she was forced to confront her own mortality His death was cataclysmic unleashing a perfect storm of grief and anxiety She and her father an enigmatic photographer for National Geographic had always been kindred spirits He introduced her to the outdoors and took her camping and on bicycle trips and down rivers and taught her to find solace and courage in the natural world And it was he who encouraged her to run her first race when she was seven years old Now nearly paralyzed by fear and terrified she was dying too she turned to the thing that had always made her feel most alive running Over the course of three tumultuous years she ran alone through the wilderness logging longer and longer distances first a 50 kilometer ultramarathon then 50 miles then 100 kilometers She ran to heal her grief to outpace her worry that she wouldn't live to raise her own daughters She ran to find strength in her weakness She ran to remember and to forget She ran to live Ultrarunning tests the limits of human endurance over seemingly inhuman distances and as she clocked miles across mesas and mountains Katie learned to tolerate pain and discomfort and face her fears of uncertainty vulnerability and even death itself As she ran she found herself peeling back the layers of her relationship with her father discovering that much of what she thought she knew about him and her own past was wrong Running Home is a memoir about the stories we tell ourselves to make sense of our world the stories that hold us back and the ones that set us free Mesmerizing transcendent and deeply exhilarating it is a book for anyone who has been knocked over by life or feels the pull of something bigger and wilder within themselves A beautiful work of searching remembrance and searing honesty Katie Arnold is as gifted on the page as she is on the trail Running Home will soon join such classics as Born to Run and Ultramarathon Man as quintessential reading of the genre Hampton Sides author of On Desperate Ground and Ghost Soldiers

Playing in the Zone Andrew Cooper, 1998-04-20 Our ancient ancestors believed that sports were a gift of the gods that they were potent rituals which if performed correctly would placate unseen powers honor departed heroes or improve the harvests Today sports still speak to deep yearnings imaginings and the irreducible need people feel to resonate with themselves and their world But the hidden meaning or secret life that lies at the heart of sports and gives them their force and magic goes largely unnoticed The old baseball hand Wes Westrum once said Baseball is like church Many attend but few understand and the same could be said for sports in general In Playing in the Zone Andrew Cooper explores this inner dimension of sports drawing on mythology the history of religion his observations on popular culture and a wonderful array of stories and anecdotes about the world's most accomplished athletes The author a clinical psychologist and longtime Zen student compares the intense focus of the mind that is often required in spiritual practice with the experience of playing in the zone that quality of mind where the most remarkable athletic feats seem to occur effortlessly He explores the dark side of sports its brutality and violence showing how it can also provide fertile ground for self awareness and self transformation Particularly insightful is the author's discussion of how the heightened drama of sports offers a powerful vehicle for the expression of mythic imagery and symbols in popular culture
