What My Mother and I Don't Talk About Michele Filgate, 2020-08-11 You will devour these beautifully written and very important tales of honesty pain and resilience Elizabeth Gilbert New York Times bestselling author of Eat Pray Love and City of Girls from fifteen brilliant writers who explore how what we don't talk about with our mothers affects us for better or for worse As an undergraduate Michele Filgate started writing an essay about being abused by her stepfather It took her more than a decade to realize that she was actually trying to write about how this affected her relationship with her mother. When it was finally published, the essay went viral, shared on social media by Anne Lamott, Rebecca Solnit, and many others. This gave Filgate an idea, and the resulting anthology offers a candid look at our relationships with our mothers. Leslie Jamison writes about trying to discover who her seemingly perfect mother was before ever becoming a mom. In Cathi Hanauer's hilarious piece, she finally gets a chance to have a conversation with her mother that isn't interrupted by her domineering but lovable father. Andr Aciman writes about what it was like to have a deaf mother. Melissa Febos uses mythology as a lens to look at her close-knit relationship with her psychotherapist mother. And Julianna Baggott talks about having a mom who tells her everything. As Filgate writes, "Our mothers are our first homes, and that's why we're always trying to return to them." There's relief in acknowledging how what we couldn't say for so long is a way to heal our relationships with others, and perhaps most important, with ourselves.

Contributions by Cathi Hanauer, Melissa Febos, Alexander Chee, Dylan Landis, Bernice L. McFadden, Julianna Baggott, Lynn Steger Strong, Kiese Laymon, Carmen Maria Machado, Andr Aciman, Sari Botton, Nayomi Munaweera, Brandon Taylor, and Leslie Jamison.

Women and New Hollywood Aaron Hunter, Martha Shearer, 2023-05-12. The 1970s has often been hailed as a great moment for American film, as a generation of New Hollywood directors like Scorsese, Coppola, and Altman offered idiosyncratic visions of what movies could be. Yet the auteurist discourse hailing these directors as the sole authors of their films has obscured the important creative roles women played in the 1970s American film industry. Women and New Hollywood revises our understanding of this important era in American film by examining the contributions that women made, not only as directors but also as screenwriters, editors, actors, producers, and critics. Including essays on film history, film texts, and the decade's film theory and criticism, this collection showcases the rich and varied cinematic products of women's creative labor, as well as the considerable barriers they faced. It considers both women working within and beyond the Hollywood film industry, reconceptualizing New Hollywood by bringing it into dialogue with other American cinemas of the 1970s. By valuing the many forms of creative labor involved in film production, this collection offers exciting alternatives to the auteurist model and new ways of appreciating the themes and aesthetics of 1970s American film.

Congressional Record United States. Congress, 2017-12. A Boy from the Valleys Raymond Hicks, 2001-04-12. Life was difficult for a young boy growing up in the South Wales Valleys in the 1920s. The future of anyone at that time led in one way or another to mining. Working away the daylight hours in a musky, dank hole in the ground was not all it was cracked up to be. It was much worse than today's generation could ever imagine, especially when someone managed to slip the miners' laxative chocolate. The reaction that an aeroplane instilled in people when it flew over the valleys for the first time made me want to join the Air Force. A boy could only dream of what the future held in store, but fate had different adventures set aside for me. I travelled around the valleys with a band playing at social evenings, and not just for the notoriety. Music would remain a constant through my life. No wonder I'm a Disk Jockey at the age of 76. I play anything from

Strauss to Six Inch Nails which give me the reputation of being able to play any type of venue      The Turk and My Mother Mary Helen Stefaniak, 2025-04-25 Winner of the John Gardner Fiction Book Award Fans of Amy Tan and Carol Shields will revel in the themes of remembrance forgiveness family devotion and forbidden love Booklist Every family has its secrets But toward the end of his life George decides to tell his daughter the story of his mother and the Turk This initial revelation leads to a narrative tour de force that follows a family through four generations and around the world through love marriage and betrayal through illness death and war Mary Helen Stefaniak s charming and flawed characters and the warmth of her prose will stay with readers long after they close the book Reading group guide included      The Writer in the Garden Jane Garmey, 2012-06-01 This anthology draws together more than 50 writers including W S Merwin Michael Pollan and M F K Fisher from across 300 years of garden writing Idiosyncratic determined and occasionally obsessed gardeners have a lot to say about their outdoor passion The Writer in the Garden brings together a host of writing gardeners and gardening writers who revel in their quirks and reflect on their experiences Subjects range from the beauty of the garden to ornery weeds the hazards of rare plant collecting and the tribulations of inclement weather Editor Jane Garmey has discovered some great contemporary works and rediscovered many classics and the volume features many authors from both sides of the Atlantic from Edith Wharton who insists that we could stand to learn about design from the Italians to Stephen Lacey who reveals that his most exciting gardening moments are spent in the bath Other writers in the collection include E B White Beverly Nichols Ken Druse Eleanor Perenyi Mirabel Osler Henry Mitchell Jamaica Kincaid Robert Dash Sara B Stein Anne Raver Patti Hagan Paula Deitz      Out of the Shuffle Sabrina Irene Found, 2014-10-03 I wrote this book to try to help someone who has gone or is going through a similar situation You have to get help It will work out It may be hard at times but the pain is worth the outcome I have been sober for fourteen years Im making many breakthroughs I must take things one day at a time

Who We Really Are Gadi Fishman,2012-10 Who We Really Are originated on facts not stories it is about the strangeness of life and all we encounter in our passage through it Who we are when looking deep is a difficult question to answer Do we actually know that person we see in the mirror While observing ourselves closely do we like what we see Are we familiar with our reflection Do we recognize our needs Are they reasonable What do we seek Is it worthy Alternatively maybe it is just suitable Would we recognize joy if lacking the feeling of sadness Could we really cherish the warmth from a loved one if we never walked the path of loneliness Is it possible to cherish relaxation when avoiding pressure How can someone value free will while ungratefully wasting his gift of life Some of these questions we try to ignore because at any given time we do not have the answers and if we do we do not like them so we continue with our life living it in denial In actuality instead of observing ourselves we are concerned about our image and most of the time we are comparing our self with others We recognize true value only when we have lost it While suffering from our losses we neglect all that still surrounds us That is when ignorance takes over and unconsciously we lose our righteousness At that point we engage in a quest to escape from reality When we are successful we slow and painfully lose our faith But then again in all our deeds it is our nature to search for the easiest way through life struggle is not an option Consequently upon encountering difficulties we experience disappointment and stress We fail to recognize that difficulties are necessary to achieve comfort Feelings bad or good are our best gifts ever so treasure them and smile more often because regrettable mistakes we formulate with a serious look on our face The
