Studies have consistently concluded that many personality disorders and more serious mental disorders are believed to be the result of dysfunctional family relationships and very often stem from the parent child relationship This makes sense children initially learn important behaviors from their families of origin For example parents are the first ones to socialize their child so they can teach their children to socialize and to say please and thank you take turns be patient etc The primary purpose of this book is to assure that parents have the information they need to properly raise children who have the skills necessary to be successful adults and not end up in the Criminal Justice System By the time you end up in the juvenile justice system it may be too late They become labelled an offender or may become a predator That label gives society the right to lock them up during which time they will be traumatized Sometimes well meaning uninformed and frustrated parents perpetuate their children entering the criminal justice system and even of child serving agencies such as social services When parents are faced with children who are incorrigible at risk or the parent is unable to care for the child due to their own personal problems some parents will welcome the intervention of the criminal justice system for support After their child has been taken into custody I have had parents tell me you raise my child because I cannot do it Some parents believe that having access to a probation officer with a badge and powers of arrest gives them the relief and respite they needed to address their child's destructive behavior My three decades of experience working with youth and parents in the criminal justice system revealed that in most cases probation and social services intervention do not make youth better Conversely for most youth their experience with social services and probation departments has resulted in ongoing delinquency and the youth transitioning into the adult Criminal Justice System However good parenting is the gatekeeper to the criminal justice system Fear
