Mapping Information Landscapes Andrew Whitworth,2020-06-26 Mapping Information Landscapes presents the first in depth study of the educational implications of the idea of information literacy as the capacity to map and navigate an information landscape Written by a leading researcher in the field it investigates how teachers and learners can use mapping in developing their ability to make informed judgements about information in specific places and times Central to the argument is the notion that the geographical and information landscapes are indivisible and the techniques we use to navigate each are essentially the same The book presents a history of mapping as a means of representing the world ranging from the work of medieval mapmakers to the 21st century Concept and mind mapping are explored and finally the notion of discursive mapping the dialogic process regardless of whether a graphical map is an outcome The theoretical framework of the book weaves together the work of authors including Annemaree Lloyd Christine Bruce practice theorists such as Theodore Schatzki and the critical geography of David Harvey an author whose work has not previously been applied to the study of information literacy The book concludes that keeping information landscapes sustainable and navigable requires attention to how equipment is used to map and organise those landscapes How we collectively think about and solve problems in the present time inscribes maps and positions them as resources in whatever landscapes we will draw on in the future Information literacy educators whether in libraries other HE courses high schools or the workplace will benefit by learning about how mapping implicitly and explicitly can be used as a method of teaching IL The book will also be useful reading for academics and researchers of information literacy and students of library and information science Memoirs of seventy years of an eventful life Charles Hulbert,1852 The English Reports: Vice-Chancellors' courts (1815-1865) ,1906

Gambling is both a multi billion dollar international industry and a ubiquitous social and cultural phenomenon. It is also undergoing significant change with new products and technologies, regulatory models, changing public attitudes and the sheer scale of the gambling enterprise necessitating innovative and mixed methodologies that are flexible, responsive and agile. This book seeks to demonstrate that researchers should look beyond the existing disciplinary territory and the dominant paradigm of problem gambling in order to follow those changes across territorial, political, technical, regulatory and conceptual boundaries. The book draws on cutting edge qualitative work in disciplines including geography, organisational studies, sociology, East Asian studies and anthropology to explore the production and consumption of risk, risky places, risk technologies, the gambling industry and connections between gambling and other kinds of speculation such as financial derivatives. In doing so it addresses some of the most important issues in contemporary social science including the challenges of studying deterritorialised social phenomena, globalising technologies and local markets, regulation as it operates across local, regional and international scales and the rise of games, virtual worlds and social media.
