

YOUR QUESTIONS, GOD'S ANSWERS

1. How can I find out who I really am?

Young people wonder “Who am I, really?” more often than older people do. Older people often think this is because young people know so much less. I think it is because young people know something more—one thing, at least, that older people often forget: that everybody’s real self is a mystery, that once we stop fooling ourselves, we recognize that we don’t know who we really are. The whole human race can learn this one great lesson, at least, from teenagers: to be human is to wonder who you really are.

Lesson One is to know that we don’t know. Socrates, the great ancient Greek philosopher and “the father of philosophy,” was called the wisest man in the world by the Delphic oracle (prophet); and the only way Socrates could interpret that saying was that he was wise only because he alone knew he was not wise.

In other words, there are only two kinds of people in this world: the wise, who know they are fools, and fools, who think they are wise. Read more about this in Proverbs 14:33, Isaiah 29:13–14, and 1 Corinthians 1:19–20.
