

Personal Identity – Philosophy Notes

The Problem of Personal Identity

- Simple facts:
 - People change
 - People endure
 - You have more in common with your classmates that you do with your 3y.o. self
 - Physically
 - Emotionally
 - Intellectually
 - Yet, you are identical to your 3y.o. self and distinct from your classmates
- Our Question:
 - In virtue of what does one and the same person persist through the radical changes she undergoes over the course of her life?

Qualitative vs Numerical Identity

- "X and Y are the same"
- Qualitative Identity is the sameness of how X and Y are: qualities, properties, features, etc.
 - Example: "you have the same car that I have"
- Numerical Identity is the sameness of which individual X and Y are: whether X and Y are one and the same
 - Example: "My husband's car is also my car"
- Three Numerical Features
 - Numerical Identity...
 - Answers a "how many?" questions.
 - $MM = NUB$ = MM and NUB are one
 - Your pen is not my pen; your pen and my pen are two
 - Implies qualitative identity.
 - If $MM = NUB$, then every feature of MM is also a feature of NUB
 - Is not implied by qualitative identity.
 - Your pen and my pen have the same features, but your pen does not equal my pen
- Personal Identity is Numerical Identity
 - In virtue of what does one and the same person persist through the radical changes she undergoes over the course of her life?

Two Criteria for Personal Identity

- Two Proposals
 - The Mind, or the Meat?
 - Bodily Criterion of Identity: $A = B$ if and only if A is biologically connected in the right way to B
 - Psychological Criterion of Identity: $A = B$ if and only if A is psychologically connected in the right way to B
- The Two Criteria Agree in Normal Cases
 - A and B are biologically, psychologically, and numerically identical/connected
 - B and C are none of the above
