

Socialization and Personality

- Nearly all human social behavior we consider natural and normal is learned.
  - Example: In the U.S. it is normal for husband and wife to walk side by side.
  - In India the wife walks slightly behind the husband.
- Almost all aspects of social life are not natural but learned though socialization.
- Socialization begins at birth and continues throughout life.
- The most important learning occurs early in life.
  - Case studies show that without prolonged socialization, children do not learn basics such as:
    - Walking
    - Talking
    - And loving.

children's sex role acquisition include 1 the role of the family in gender identity formation 2 peer pressure to conform to rules regarding sex appropriate behavior and attitudes 3 the impact of television and 4 the significant role that schools play in emphasizing reinforcing and expanding differences that children have when they enter school It is concluded that sex role socialization provides a viable way of understanding the process of personality development because it involves the same principles invoked in other areas of socialization
