The Structuring of Experience I. Uzgiris, 2012-12-06 The articles which make up this book were all expressly written to honor a remarkable man and a remarkable psychologist Joseph McVicker Hunt on the occasion of his 70th birthday The contributors to this volume with the exception of Hunt's teacher J P Guilford are students and colleagues of Hunt's whose intellectual and professional paths have crossed his in some significant way In terms of content the contributions collectively range across many of the conventional boundaries that demarcate the territories into which psychological subject matter has been divided In so doing they remain faithful to the man they honor for whom such boundaries have had at best only provisional reality Yet as the introductory chapter attempts to make clear there is a unifying theme that lies behind the apparent diversity of Hunt's work While we wished to mark Hunt's specific contributions to the diverse areas represented in this book we also hoped to capture the unity of viewpoint that ties them together

Annals of Theoretical Psychology

Joseph R. Royce, Leendert P. Mos, 2013-11-11 As such things happen several manuscripts in the present volume were under review prior to the ones that appeared in Volume I of the Annals A major difficulty encountered in the preparation of these volumes apart from working up to three years in advance of publication is eliciting appropriate commentary If this format is to succeed the commentary must be both engaging to the reader and satisfying to the author It is not yet clear how successful we have been in this regard and indeed we do not feel bound to publish commentary with each manuscript that is accepted for publication Nevertheless we do invite readers commentaries on published materials The contributions by Jan Smedslund and Benjamin Wolman in this volume have been through an inordinately long publication lag We have been in receipt of both manuscripts since early in 1981 and Dr Smedslund especially has since clarified and advanced his views elsewhere in print K B Madsen and Joseph Rychlak submitted their manuscripts in the fall of 1981 while Michael Hyland and J Philippe Rushton had first drafts of their manuscripts accepted for publication in the fall of 1982 We are grateful to our contributors for their expressed commitment to the Annals and assure potential contributors that the delay in publication is a mere matter of getting the series off the ground

Miller,2014-01-09 Philosophers and psychologists have been hard at work trying to unlock the mysteries of our characters Unfortunately their answers have been all over the map According to one position every single person has all of the moral virtues such as modesty and compassion although to varying degrees Yet according to another position no one has any character traits at all since they are simply illusions and do not exist Hence not one person is honest or compassionate or courageous And between these extremes there are plenty of intermediate views Christian B Miller argues that not one of these leading positions accurately reflects what most of us are like today He explores the implications of the Mixed Trait framework a theory of moral character developed in his previous book Moral Character An Empirical Theory Mixed traits have both morally positive aspects hence they are not vices along with morally negative aspects hence they are not virtues Miller engages with the other leading positions on the empirical nature of character situationism the CAPS model the Big Five model and the local trait model He goes on to apply the Mixed Trait framework to several important topics in ethics especially the development of an error theory about judgments of character and the challenge faced by virtue ethics from the widespread lack of virtue A Students' Guide to Piaget D.
