Personality Characteristics Of The Personality Disordered:

Personality Characteristics of the Personality Disordered Charles G. Costello, 1995-10-27 People with disordered personalities are much more likely than most to practice substance abuse attempt suicide and suffer from major anxiety and depressive disorders They are also more difficult to treat for mental disorders and their chances of relapse are greater Clearly then it is essential that mental health professionals be able to identify and cope with personality disorders in their patients Unfortunately the task of accurately assessing disordered personalities based solely on nebulous polythetic categories such as those provided in the DSM-IV is akin to that of the three blind men who were asked to describe an elephant What is needed is a new approach to conceptualizing personality disorders based on observable behaviors rather than inferential nosologies In this book Charles G Costello lays the foundations for just such an approach Reculer pour mieux sauter to retreat so as to better leap ahead is the phrase Dr Costello uses to articulate the spirit in which this book was conceived Stated more practically his goal in presenting this volume is to afford psychotherapists an opportunity to step back from questionable clinical categories and redirect their attention onto the individual personality traits commonly associated with personality disorders to more clearly define them their origins and their functional relationships and in so doing open up new avenues for research and provide clinicians with a surer conceptual footing upon which to base diagnoses and devise treatment strategies To achieve that end Dr Costello invited a group of leading researchers and clinicians in the field to share their understanding of the current state of knowledge about personality disorders Over the course of eleven chapters each devoted to a separate personality characteristic these experts review the latest research data and offer their professional insights into the major personality characteristics of the personality disordered including aggressiveness anxiousness emotional instability impulsiveness dependency narcissism detachment paranoia obsessiveness and sensation seeking Personality Characteristics of the Personality Disordered is a valuable resource for clinical psychologists psychiatrists and all mental health practitioners as well as personality theorists and researchers SYMPTOMS OF DEPRESSION Edited by Charles G Costello This groundbreaking book advances our understanding of depression by directing focus away from the global syndrome of depression and onto the individual symptoms it comprises Some of the field's foremost researchers and clinicians share their findings and offer insights into all major symptoms of depression including dysphoria anhedonia sleeping problems hopelessness suicide attempts social dysfunction cognitive dysfunction eating problems and more Each symptom is discussed using a common format definition measurement frequency of occurrence a review of clinical and experimental findings that have led to the current theories of the causes of the symptom its functional relationship to other symptoms of depression and implications for clinical practice 1993 0 471 54304 7 322 pp SYMPTOMS OF SCHIZOPHRENIA Edited by Charles G Costello This volume offers readers an opportunity to step back from unwieldy clinical categories of syndromes and redirect their attention onto the symptoms that comprise those syndromes Leading clinicians and researchers in the field review the current state of knowledge about the major symptoms common to schizophrenic disorders and share their insights into thinking disorders hallucinations delusions disorders of affect ambivalence social withdrawal anhedonia psychomotor abnormalities and more Symptoms are treated in individual chapters in order of definition measurement frequency a review of clinical and experimental findings that have led to current theories of the causes of the symptom its functional relationships to other symptoms and implications for clinical practice 1993 0 471 54875 8 320 pp DISORDERS OF PERSONALITY DSM IV and Beyond Second Edition Theodore Millon and Roger D Davis This fully revised second edition of Theodore Millon s landmark work guides researchers teachers and students through the special complexities of this group of disorders and aids clinicians in the difficult work of diagnosis A compelling new feature of this edition is its revised theoretical framework the learning theory biosocial approach has grown into a more evolutionary model that includes constructs applicable to phylogenesis and human adaptive styles Other new features include the expansion of the 15 basic personality prototypes into personality disorder subcategories an enlarged review of historical and contemporary thinking on personality disorders an expanded clinical picture segment for each chapter and comprehensive reviews of the newer personality prototypes such as avoidant narcissistic borderline schizotypal depressive sadistic and masochistic This Second Edition also includes new chapters on personality assessment and personality therapy and an up to date review of available instruments as well as an expanded and detailed discussion of short term focused therapy 1995 0 471 01186 X 768 pp
