Nature and Society Philippe Descola, Gisli Palsson, 2003-12-16 The contributors to this book focus on the relationship between nature and society from a variety of theoretical and ethnographic perspectives Their work draws upon recent developments in social theory biology ethnobiology epistemology sociology of science and a wide array of ethnographic case studies from Amazonia the Solomon Islands Malaysia the Mollucan Islands rural communities from Japan and north west Europe urban Greece and laboratories of molecular biology and high energy physics The discussion is divided into three parts emphasising the problems posed by the nature culture dualism some misguided attempts to respond to these problems and potential avenues out of the current dilemmas of ecological discourse Perspectives on Anthropological Collections from the American Southwest Ann Lane Hedlund, Arizona State University. Anthropology Phillip Whitten, David E. Hunter, 1993 This collection of essays lets students explore such topics as the changing role of anthropology evolution versus natural selection the disappearance of the Neanderthal sex roles human diversity the explosion of creativity technology and culture and language The editors have selected works by some of today's leading anthropologists science writers and scientists to provide students with a range of perspectives to help them understand the relevance of anthropology in this changing world Perspectives on Human Sexuality Anne Bolin, Patricia Whelehan, 1999-01-01 Presents the first book length examination of both the biological and cultural factors in human sexuality Anthropological Perspectives on Technology Michael B. Schiffer, 2001 These fourteen original essays accept a dual premise technology pervades and is embedded in all human activities By taking that approach studies of technology address two questions central in anthropological and archaeological research today accounting for variability and change These diverse yet interrelated chapters show that to understand human lives researchers must deal with the material world that all peoples create and inhabit Therefore an anthropology of technology is not a separate discrete inquiry instead it is a way to connect how people make and use things to any activity studied ranging from religion to enculturation to communication to art Each contributor discusses theories and methods and also offers a substantial case study These detailed inquiries span human societies from the Paleolithic to the computer age By moving beyond the usual approach of examining ancient technologies particularly chipped stone and low fired ceramics this volume probes for the construction of meaning in the material world across millennia The authors of these essays find technology to be an inclusive and flexible topic that merges with studies of everything else in human activity A provocative and powerful discussion of the role of technology in human cultures At a time when archaeology has become less focused on theory and archaeology and social anthropology seem to fracture farther and farther apart the book is a breath of fresh air Professor John Douglas University of Montana

Anthropological Perspectives on Social Memory Petri Hautaniemi, Helena Jerman, 2006 This volume of articles explores social memory as a phenomenon by addressing the complex relationship between embodied memory history time and space The studies richly demonstrate how objects and substances may be significant media through which past and present are shared within communities and also how specific sites such as bodies dwellings or geopolitical places may be so as well Articles also present reflections on the challenges of gathering field material of being reflexive and of reaching beyond the time and space of the immediate field context All of the articles in this volume are based on high quality ethnographic research While all are self standing and grounded in individual research projects they nevertheless complement each other and can be seen as interconnected They not only address the complex relationship between history and memory and between past and present but also in many different and challenging ways show how social memory is implicated in orientations towards the future

Perspectives Nina Brown, Laura Tubelle de Gonzalez, Thomas McIlwraith, 2018-04-13 This textbook is a collection of chapters on the essential topics in cultural anthropology Different from other introductory textbooks this book is an edited volume with each chapter written by a different author Each author has written from their experiences working as an anthropologist and that personal touch makes for an accessible introduction to cultural anthropology BC Campus website

New Directions in Biocultural Anthropology Molly K. Zuckerman, Debra L. Martin, 2016-10-17 Biocultural or biosocial anthropology is a research approach that views biology and culture as dialectically and inextricably intertwined explicitly emphasizing the dynamic interaction between humans and their larger social cultural and physical environments The biocultural approach emerged in anthropology in the 1960s matured in the 1980s and is now one of the dominant paradigms in anthropology particularly within biological anthropology This volume gathers contributions from the top scholars in biocultural anthropology focusing on six of the most influential productive and important areas of research within biocultural anthropology These are critical and synthetic approaches within biocultural anthropology biocultural approaches to identity including race and racism health diet and nutrition infectious disease from antiquity to the modern era epidemiologic transitions and population dynamics and inequality and violence studies Focusing on these six major areas of burgeoning research within biocultural anthropology makes the proposed volume timely widely applicable and useful to scholars engaging in biocultural research and students interested in the biocultural approach and synthetic in its coverage of contemporary scholarship in biocultural anthropology Students will be able to grasp the history of the biocultural approach and how that history continues to impact scholarship as well as the scope of current research within the approach and the foci of biocultural research into the future Importantly contributions in the text follow a consistent format of a discussion of method and theory relative to a particular aspect of the above six topics followed by a case study applying the surveyed method and theory This structure will engage students by providing real world examples of anthropological issues and demonstrating how biocultural method and theory can be used to elucidate and resolve them Key features include Contributions which span the breadth of approaches and topics within biological anthropology from the insights granted through work with ancient human remains to those granted through collaborative research with contemporary peoples Comprehensive treatment of diverse topics within biocultural anthropology from human variation and adaptability to recent disease pandemics the embodied effects of race and racism industrialization and the rise of allergy and autoimmune diseases and the sociopolitics of slavery and torture Contributions and sections united by thematically cohesive threads Clear jargon free language in a text that is designed to be pedagogically flexible contributions are written to be both understandable and engaging to both undergraduate and graduate students Provision of synthetic theory method and data in each contribution The use of richly contextualized case studies driven by empirical data Through case study driven contributions each chapter demonstrates how biocultural approaches can be used to better understand and resolve real world problems and anthropological issues

Discourses of Development R. D. Grillo, R. L. Stirrat, 1997-10 The authors of this text raise provocative questions about the relationship of politics power ideology and rhetoric to the institutional practice of development

The Anthropology of Landscape Eric Hirsch, Michael O'Hanlon, 1995 Landscape has long had a submerged presence within anthropology both as a framing device which informs the way the anthropologist brings his or her study into view and as the meaning imputed by local people to their cultural and physical surroundings A principal aim of this volume follows from these interconnected ways of considering landscape the conventional Western notion of landscape may be used as a productive point of departure from which to explore analogous ideas local ideas can in turn reflexively be used to interrogate the Western construct The Introduction argues that landscape should be conceptualized as a cultural process a process located between place and space foreground actuality and background potentiality image and representation In the chapters that follow nine noted anthropologists and an art historian exemplify this approach drawing on a diverse set of case studies These range from an analysis of Indian calendar art to an account of Israeli nature tourism and from the creation of a metropolitan gaze in nineteenth century Paris to the soundscapes particular to the Papua New Guinean rainforests The anthropological perspectives developed here are of cross disciplinary relevance geographers art historians and archaeologists will be no less interested than anthropologists in this re envisaging of the notion of landscape

Anthropology, Contemporary Perspectives David E. Hunter, Phillip Whitten, 1982 Introducing Anthropology: Unveiling Human Culture, Society, and History Pasquale De Marco, 2025-05-21 In a world where cultures collide and identities intertwine Introducing Anthropology Unveiling Human Culture Society and History emerges as an indispensable guide to understanding the complexities of the human experience This comprehensive book offers a captivating journey through the diverse landscapes of anthropological inquiry inviting readers to explore the fundamental questions that shape our existence Delving into the depths of biological anthropology this book unravels the mysteries of human evolution tracing our biological roots and revealing the remarkable journey that has led to the emergence of modern humans Through the lens of cultural anthropology it delves into the intricate tapestry of human societies and cultures uncovering the patterns and variations that shape our collective experiences The study of archaeology takes us back in time unearthing the secrets of ancient civilizations and shedding light on the origins of human culture Furthermore this book explores the fascinating realm of language and communication revealing the power of words and symbols in shaping human thought and interaction It delves into the intricacies of linguistic diversity examining how languages reflect and influence the cultures they embody Beyond its academic rigor Introducing Anthropology emphasizes the practical relevance of anthropological insights in addressing contemporary issues facing humanity It provides a framework for understanding global health challenges environmental degradation conflict resolution and the impact of technological advancements on our lives By examining diverse cultural perspectives and historical precedents this book empowers readers to critically evaluate societal norms and work towards positive change This book is not merely a collection of facts and theories it is an invitation to embark on an intellectual adventure to challenge assumptions and to expand horizons It is an invaluable resource for students scholars and anyone seeking a deeper understanding of humanity in all its manifestations Introducing Anthropology is a testament to the enduring power of anthropology to illuminate the human condition and foster a more just and compassionate world If you like this book write a review on google books The Oxford Handbook of Law and Anthropology Marie-Claire Foblets, Mark Goodale, Maria Sapiñoli, Olaf Zenker, 2022-04-01 The Oxford Handbook of Law and Anthropology is a ground breaking collection of essays that provides an original and internationally framed conception of the historical theoretical and ethnographic interconnections of law and anthropology Each of the chapters in the Handbook provides a survey of the current state of scholarly debate and an argument about the future direction of research in this dynamic and interdisciplinary field The structure of the Handbook is animated by an overarching collective narrative about how law and anthropology have and should relate to each other as intersecting domains of inquiry that address such fundamental questions as dispute resolution normative ordering social organization and legal political and social identity The need for such a comprehensive project has become even more pressing as lawyers and anthropologists work together in an ever increasing number of areas including immigration and asylum processes international justice forums cultural heritage certification and monitoring and the writing of new national constitutions among many others The Handbook takes critical stock of these various points of intersection in order to identify and conceptualize the most promising areas of innovation and sociolegal relevance as well as to acknowledge the points of tension open questions and areas for future development Anthropological Perspectives on Care Erdmute Alber, Heike Drotbohm, 2015-09-02 In the course of last two decades the notion of care has become prominent in the social and cultural sciences As a result of this proliferation of care in several disciplinary fields we are observing not only the expansion of its conceptual meaning but also an increasing imprecision in its usage A growing amount of literature focuses on the intersection between work gender ethnicity affect and mobility regimes In view of this growing field of literature Anthropological Perspectives on Care looks at the notion of care from an anthropological perspective Complementing earlier approaches Alber and Drotbohm argue that an interpretation of care in relation to three different concepts namely work kinship and the life course will facilitate empirical and conceptual distinctions between the different activities that are labeled as care The Challenge of Epistemology Christina Toren, João de Pina-Cabral, 2011-10-01 Epistemology poses particular problems for anthropologists whose task it is to understand manifold ways of being human Through their work anthropologists often encounter people whose ideas concerning the nature and foundations of knowledge are at odds with their own Going right to the heart of anthropological theory and method this volume discusses issues that have vexed practicing anthropologists for a long time The authors are by no means in agreement with one another as to where the answers might lie Some are primarily concerned with the clarity and theoretical utility of analytical categories across disciplines others are more inclined to push ethnographic analysis to its limits in an effort to demonstrate what kind of sense it can make All are aware of the much wanted differences that good ethnography can make in explaining the human sciences and philosophy The contributors show a continued commitment to ethnography as a profoundly radical intellectual endeavor that goes to the very roots of inquiry into what it is to be human and to anthropology as a comparative project that should be central to any attempt to understand who we are
