Burger,2013-06-29 This book is a cumulation of a research program that began in the summer of 1978 when I was a doctoral student at the University of Missouri What started as a graduate student's curiosity about individual differences in need for personal control led to a personality scale a few publications some additional questions and additional research For reasons I no longer recall I named this personality trait desire for control One study led to another and questions by students and colleagues often spurred me to apply desire for control to new areas and new questions At the same time researchers around the globe began using the scale and sending me reprints of articles and copies of papers describing work they had done on desire for control In the past decade or so I have talked or corresponded with dozens of students who have used the scale in their doctoral dissertation and master's thesis research I have heard of or seen translations of the Desirability of Control Scale into German Polish Japanese and French There is also a children's version of the scale I estimate that there have now been more than a hundred studies conducted on desire for control Psychology of the Americas Manuel Ramirez,2013-10-22 Psychology of the Americas Mestizo Perspectives on Personality and Mental Health presents the framework for a personality psychology and psychiatry of the Americas. This framework is based on the mestizo world view, a perspective that emerged from sociopolitical events which are unique to the development of many of the nations of the Americas. The word mestizo refers to the synthesis of native American and European people, cultures, and life styles. This book is divided into nine chapters and starts with a discussion of the concepts and principles of developmental, personality, community, and clinical psychology and psychiatry, which are reflected in the cultures of the indigenous peoples of North and South America as well as the Caribbean. Considerable chapters offer some models that are based on the paradigms of diversity and synthesis, specifically a values/belief systems/cognitive styles framework based on research that has explored the relationship between traditionalism/modernism and cognitive styles. The specific models focus on individual development of pluralistic identities, the mental health of families coping with acculturation stress, person/environment fit of migrating individuals who are mismatched with institutions and agencies of the community, and on intergroup and international relations in situations of conflict. The remaining chapters deal with the tenets and assumptions of a psychology and psychiatry including theories and approaches which differ in many respects from the European world view based personality psychology and psychiatry of the past. This book is of value to psychologists, psychiatrists, researchers, and students.
