

The GDPR Perspectives: Philosophy

General Data Protection Regulation

Aristotle

GDPR Recital (4): 'The right to privacy is not an absolute right; it must be considered in relation to its function in society and be balanced against other fundamental rights, in accordance with the principle of proportionality.'

Aristotle's understanding of moral virtue provides logic for this balancing. What would be adequate, given the situation, and what would be proportional (not too much and not too little).

Immanuel Kant

The GDPR has an underlying Kantian moral philosophy.

With Kant, we see as our moral right: safeguarding our own privacy and as our moral obligation: safeguarding the privacy of the individuals involved in our research.
