Perspectives on Academic Writing Bernd Herzogenrath, 2022-11-17 Particularly for the disciplines of the humanities and social sciences for which writing is their lifeblood the crisis in academic writing has become existential It is not hard to diagnose the disease and its causes This book showcases what we desperately need radical alternatives experiments we can try out ways of writing that don't just tweak the system but plot a different course altogether This isn't just about finding new genres for these only change the surface appearance without altering the underlying dynamic Rather the editor and contributors focus on finding new ways to join thinking both with writing and the things of which and with which we write Each chapter brims with the kind of liveliness outspokenness and urgency that their theme demands Far from tiptoeing around the edifice of academia they are intent on stirring things up reigniting their scholarship with a fuse of activism in the hope of setting off an explosion that could send ripples throughout the academy College Academic Writing A

Genre-Based Perspective Dr. I Wy. Dirgeyasa, M.Hum., 2017-01-02 The College Academic Writing A Genre Based Perspective course book is organized based on genre perspective It teaches and trains the students about the writing process and content writing It also guides them to identify to whom the writing is for what purpose it is and to what context it is used It is commonly understood that in teaching writing to students with low entry level of English proficiency there is always the risk of sacrificing creativity in order to achieve accuracy or vice versa College Academic Writing A Genre Based Perspective is designed to guide and help students about the process of writing and the product of the writing itself in such a way that the final work of writing is not only expressive and rich in content but also clear and accurate as well as relevant to their needs Buku persembahan penerbit Prenada Media

Matthew Peacock, John Flowerdew, 2001-03-15 This volume of specially commissioned articles examines theory and practice in EAP Perspectives and Perceptions on Academic Writing and Citations Vinod Kumar Kanvaria, 2016-03-15 The current book Perspectives and Perceptions on Academic Writing and Citations is consisted of three parts All the three parts are distinct in their nature and type of chapters included therein The first part involves a brief introduction about academic writing and citations and various perspectives and perceptions regarding this The author introduces about academic writing and tries to throw light upon the main features which makes it different from simple and layman's writing This includes not only what why and how of academic writing but also what is the possible international code of conduct and ethics while creating an academic writing The chapter is highly enriched to create a sense of academic writing and paves the way for creating it logically and rationally The author then gives an eagle s eye on perspectives and perceptions about academic writing by people associated with various different sorts of organizations These academicians belong to Commonwealth NCERT Open University Central University and Private University The second part consists of the chapters by various academicians that witness their perspectives and perceptions about academic writing and citations There are chapters which are written by academics with long teaching learning and writing experience belonging to different sectors of academic field When going through these chapters readers will have a glance of what academics from the country think about academic writing and citations and will get further insight about what is and what should be there pertaining to this field The third part of this book shares an empirical study especially meant for the current assignment The chapter shares an opinionnaire which was developed on academic writing and citations It was sent to those who are or were involved in any sort of academic writing The author analyses the data to discuss various issues pertaining to writing ethics academic writing citations and styles This part does not evaluate the knowledge of those who attempted this opinionnaire but tries to throw light upon some critical issues pertaining to academic writing and citations drawn from the data The chapter reveals that academics have different sort of opinions pertaining to even those issues which one would think can be generalized easily to be uniform in nature The book became the need of the hour as most of the new authors who are writing papers articles etc are lacking in proper knowledge of academic writing and citations Even the basic concepts of academic writing and citations are absent in their writing and this has more enhanced by the flood of so called international national journals who claim to publish the paper within a day or a week without even looking at the write up and just by charging a huge amount of money Hence people are blindly publishing anything in such journals and publications which are publishing blindly anything due to lack of basic knowledge even among their so called editors and reviewers I fact some of such editors or reviewers form a group contact some reputed academicians make them the patron etc become self declared editors and sub editors though may not knowing to write even a single page correctly They call reputed people in some seminars conferences etc pay them some good amount of money and become editor of so called international national journals Due to easy publication in such flooded online international national journals new authors don t want to even learn basics of academic writing and citations And this has been one of the basic reasons for carrying out this book The book is a boon for all students researchers authors teachers teacher educators publishers proof readers and academic writers It is a must read for all the people related in one way or the other to academic writing and citations Writing and Learning in Cross-national Perspective David Foster,2017-10-03 Despite the increasingly global implications of conversations about writing and learning U S composition studies has devoted little attention to cross national perspectives on student writing and its roles in wider cultural contexts Caught up in our own concerns about how U S students make the transition as writers from secondary school to postsecondary education we often overlook the fact that students around the world are undergoing the same evolution How do the students in China England France Germany Kenya or South Africa the educational systems represented in this collection write their way into the communities of their chosen disciplines How for instance do students whose mother tongue is not the language of instruction cope with the demands of academic and discipline specific writing And in what ways is U S students development as academic writers similar to or different from that of students in other countries With this collection editors David Foster and David R Russell broaden the discussion about the role of writing in various educational systems and cultures Students development as academic writers raises issues of student authorship and agency as well as larger issues of educational access institutional power relations system goals and students roles in society The contributors to this collection discuss selected writing purposes and forms characteristic of a specific national education system describe students agency as writers and identify contextual factors social economic linguistic cultural that shape institutional responses to writing development In discussions that bookend these studies of different educational structures the editors compare U S postsecondary writing practices and pedagogies with those in other national systems and suggest new perspectives for cross national study of learning writing issues important to all educational systems Given the worldwide increase in students entering higher education and the endless need for effective writing across disciplines and nations the insights offered here and the call for further studies are especially welcome and timely
