Pest Management in Rice L.G. Copping, 2012-12-06 The four day international Conference on Pest Management in Rice which is the subject of this volume was the third in an ongoing series of meetings on tropical crops organised by the Pesticides Group of the Society of Chemical Industry London The participants came from both the public and private sectors and from many different countries All the major groups of pests weeds microorganisms arthropods and rodents were considered as the organisers believe that it is necessary to address the total pest management problems in each particular growing area and the variety of the papers indicates the importance of a multi disciplinary approach to their solution Rice is one of the most important world crops and is the major source of food for around 60% of the world s population with a world production of 500 million tonnes from 150 million hectares of land Since world stocks amount to only two months supply many people are at risk from famine Moreover it has been estimated that the world requirement in 2020 will be about 760 million tonnes an increase of 50% This pressure of population on food makes efficient pest management vital and is the reason for bringing together experts from all over the world to this major conference Pest Control in Rice Centre for Overseas Pest Research (Great Britain), Susan D. protection problems cannot be resolved solely by the application of chemicals In the past several years increasing efforts have there fore been made to introduce as a first step supervised crop protection leading gradually to integrated pest management Kranz 1982 Although the crop protection problems naturally differ in the different devel oping countries in Southeast Asia the economic situation prevailing in these countries can nevertheless be regarded as an important common determinant pesticide imports use up scarce foreign currency and thus compete with other imports essential to development For the individual rice farmer the problem is basically the same his cash funds are limited and he must carefully weigh whether to use them for purchas ing pesticides fertilizer or certified seed In view of this constraint it is becom ing necessary to abandon the purely prophylactic routine calendar spraying and instead employ critically timed and need based pesticide applications

Includes over 150 photographs and images. Rice Storage and Insect Pest Management, 1987. Integrated Pest Management Rajinder Peshin, Ashok K. Dhawan, 2009-03-10. Integrated Pest Management: Dissemination and Impact Volume 2 is a sequel to Integrated Pest Management: Innovation Development Process Volume 1. The book focuses on the IPM systems in the developed countries of North America, Europe and Australia and the developing countries of Asia, Latin America and Africa. One of the major impediments in the dissemination and adoption of the IPM innovation is the complexity of the technology and reaching the vast population of farmers especially in the developing countries. The IPM innovation development process is incomplete without the diffusion and adoption of IPM methods by the end users and through its consequences. In spite of all the efforts in the developed and developing countries, the adoption of IPM is still low with few exceptions. The book covers the underlying concepts and methodologies of the diffusion of innovation theory and the program evaluation and reviews the progress and impact of IPM programs implemented in the industrialized, the green revolution and the subsistence agricultural systems of the world. Forty-four experts from entomology, plant pathology, environmental science, agronomy, anthropology, economics and extension education from Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America have discussed the impact of IPM with an interdisciplinary perspective. Each one of the experts is an authority in his or her field of expertise. The researchers, farmers, education, supporting policies of the governments and market forces are the elements of the IPM innovation system to achieve wider adoption of IPM strategy in agriculture. Crop Loss Assessment in Rice International Rice Research Institute, 1990.
