Pest Control Strategies is a compilation of papers presented at the symposium held at Cornell University in June 1977. It covers various aspects and issues on pest control. It also discusses the risks and benefits of using pesticides on human health as well as on the economy and environment. Composed of four parts, the book provides an overview of the various alternative pest control techniques and identifies possible solutions on crop pest problems. Part 1 discusses the role of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the integrated pest management programs and policy. The following part discusses the complexity of pest management in terms of socioeconomic and legal aspects. Part 3 presents the different case studies about pest management. These case studies include the potentials for research and implementation of integrated pest management on deciduous tree fruits and other agricultural crops. The last part of this collection describes the current status, needs, and future developments of integrated pest management. This book will be relevant to extension leaders, educators, government officials, and agriculturists as well as to students, teachers, and researchers who are interested in the integrated pest management program.

The Economics of Integrated Pest Control in Irrigated Rice Hermann Waibel, 2012-12-06 As a result of the green revolution the use of yield increasing inputs such as fertilizer and pesticides became a matter of course in irrigated rice farming in Southeast Asia Pesticides were applied liberally both as a guarantee against crop failure and as a means of fully utilizing the existing yield potential of the crops However since outbreaks of pests such as the brown planthopper BPH or the tungro virus continued to occur despite the application of chemicals a change of approach began to take place It is now being realized more and more in Southeast Asia that crop protection problems cannot be resolved solely by the application of chemicals In the past several years increasing efforts have therefore been made to introduce as a first step supervised crop protection leading gradually to integrated pest management Kranz 1982 Although the crop protection problems naturally differ in the different developing countries in Southeast Asia the economic situation prevailing in these countries can nevertheless be regarded as an important common determinant pesticide imports use up scarce foreign currency and thus compete with other imports essential to development For the individual rice farmer the problem is basically the same his cash funds are limited and he must carefully weigh whether to use them for purchasing pesticides fertilizer or certified seed In view of this constraint it is becoming necessary to abandon the purely prophylactic routine calendar spraying and instead employ critically timed and need based pesticide applications
