Reading Auschwitz Mary

Lagerwey, 1998-10-27 My mind refuses to play its part in the scholarly exercise I walk around in a daze remembering occasionally to take a picture I've heard that many people cry here but I am too numb to feel The wind whips through my wool coat I am very cold and I imagine what the wind would have felt like for someone here fifty years ago without coat boots or gloves Hours later as I write I tell myself a story about the day hoping it is true and hoping it will make sense of what I did and did not feel _From the Foreword Most of us learn of Auschwitz and the Holocaust through the writings of Anne Frank and Elie Wiesel Remarkable as their stories are they leave many voices of Auschwitz unheard Mary Lagerwey seeks to complicate our memory of Auschwitz by reading less canonical survivors Jean Amery Charlotte Delbo Fania Fenelon Szymon Laks Primo Levi and Sara Nomberg Przytyk She reads for how gender social class and ethnicity color their tellings She asks whether we can _whether we should _make sense of Auschwitz And throughout Lagerwey reveals her own role in her research tells of her own fears and anxieties presenting what she a non Jew born after the fall of Nazism can only know second hand For any student of the Holocaust for anyone trying to make sense of the final solution Reading Auschwitz represents a powerful struggle with what it means to read and tell stories after Auschwitz

Authenticity Patrick Finney, 2020-04-28

The pursuit of authenticity is a contemporary obsession From hipster fixations on artisan coffee and vintage clothing through to the electoral success of supposedly unspun populist politicians like Donald Trump a yearning for the real pervades our culture Yet while highly prized and desired authenticity is also profoundly elusive and contested This volume stages a wide ranging interdisciplinary interrogation of the concept with case studies ranging from collective memory of the Second World War through the historical fiction of Sarah Waters to the confessional art of Tracey Emin With contributors drawn from memory studies cultural history English literature theatre studies and art criticism it explores how authenticity is in play in diverse practices of reading remembering and performing The chapters demonstrate that authenticity has no single stable definition but is rather invoked in very diverse ways both descriptively and prescriptively in many diverse contexts They also make clear that it is not an inherent quality but the product of orchestration performance and inter subjective negotiation This book was originally published as a special issue of Rethinking History
