Information Strategy and Warfare John Arquilla, Douglas A. Borer, 2007-08-08 This volume develops information strategy as a construct equal in importance to military strategy as an influential tool of statecraft John Arquilla and Douglas A Borer explore three principal themes the rise of the information domain and information strategy as an equal partner alongside traditional military strategy the need to consider the organizational implications of information strategy the realm of what has been called information operations IO the building blocks of information strategy has been too narrowly depicted and must be both broadened and deepened Information Strategy and Warfare will be essential reading for students and practitioners of information strategy as well as scholars of security studies and military strategy in general The Relational Self Rebecca C. Curtis, 1991-03-22 In recent years the traditional psychoanalytic view of the self as an autonomous entity has been shifting to a more relational perspective This evolution from a solely intrapsychic stance brings psychoanalysis closer to the viewpoint of social psychology formerly a highly divergent discipline Bridging these different literatures THE RELATIONAL SELF describes the extent and meaning of these convergences The book is divided into four sections The first two examine current perspectives from psychoanalytic self psychology and social psychology and the latter two present an integration of psychoanalytic and social personality approaches Part One reviews the psychoanalytic theories of character structure that focus upon identity maintenance self esteem regulation and resistance to change Also presented is an interactional view of the self that explores the intersubjective context of intrapsychic experience Part Two shifts from the largely unconscious intrapsychic self to the self as affected by situational variables Considered here are the relationship between self image and attitudes the social categories deemed by people as important to their identity and the effects of physical relocation upon self concept change Part Three presents a theory of the self with separate rational and experiential processing systems and also explores cultural influences on the self from a psychoanalytic vantage point Part Four considers psychotherapy self verification and self concept change including self defeating behavior and self consistency striving the avoidance of self awareness self evaluation maintenance and self with other representations Bringing together the work of leading theorists in social psychoanalytic and personality psychology on the interaction of self organization with the social and physical environment THE RELATIONAL SELF fosters a better understanding of both situational and dispositional variables and a deeper appreciation of the changing theoretical sense of a relational self as the ultimate stage of development

Vygotsky's Sociohistorical Psychology and its Contemporary Applications Carl Ratner,2013-06-29

The social character of psychological phenomena has never been easy to comprehend Despite the fact that an intricate set of social relations forms our most intimate thoughts feelings and actions we believe that psychology originates inside our body in genes hormones the brain and free will Perhaps this asocial view stems from the alienated nature of most societies which makes individual activity appear to be estranged from social relations One might have thought that the emergence of scientific psychology would have disclosed the social character of activity had overlooked Unfortunately a century and a which naive experience half of psychological science has failed to comprehend the elusive social character of psychological phenomena Psychological science has evidently been subjugated by the mystifying ideology of society This book aims to comprehend the social character of psychological functioning I argue that psychological functions are quintessentially social in nature and that this social character must be comprehended if psychological knowledge and practice are to advance The social nature of psychological phenomena consists in the fact that they are constructed by individuals in the process of social interaction they depend upon properties of social interaction one of their primary purposes is facilitating social interaction and they embody the specific character of historically bound social relations This viewpoint is known as sociohistorical psychology It was articulated most profoundly and comprehensively by the Russian psychologists Lev Vygotsky and Alexander Luria during the 1920s and 1930s

Making Public Policy Decisions Damon Alexander,Jenny Lewis,2014-12-05 To understand public policy decisions it is imperative to understand the capacities of the individual actors who are making them how they think and feel about their role and what drives and motivates them However the current literature takes little account of this preferring instead to frame the decisions as the outcomes of a rational search for value maximising alternatives or the result of systematic and well ordered institutional and organisational processes Yet understanding how personal and emotional factors interact with broader institutional and organisational influences to shape the deliberations and behaviour of politicians and bureaucrats is paramount if we are to construct a more useful nuanced and dynamic picture of government decision making This book draws on a variety of approaches to examine individuals working in contemporary government from freshly trained policy officers to former cabinet ministers and prime ministers It provides important new insights into how those in government navigate their way through complex issues and decisions based on developed expertise that fuses formal rational techniques with other learned behaviours memories emotions and practiced forms of judgment at an individual level This innovative collection from leading academics across Australia Europe the United Kingdom and North America will be of great interest to researchers educators advanced students and practitioners working in the fields of political science public management and administration and public policy
