A Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade James Harvey Kidd,2010-04 The narrative contained in the pages of this book is a story of the personal recollections of one of the troopers who rode with Custer and played a part in the tragedy of the civil war As such it is modestly put forth with the hope that it may prove to be an interesting story to those who read it The author also trusts that it may contribute something albeit but a little toward giving Custer s Michigan cavalymen the place in the history of their country which they so richly earned on many fields While memory has been the principal guide the strict historical truth has been sought and when there appeared to be a reasonable doubt the official records have been consulted and the writings of others freely drawn upon to verify these recollections The Roll of Honor a list of all those who were killed in action or who died of wounds received in action is as complete as it was possible to make it from the official records In a very few cases men who were reported missing in action and of whom no further record could be found were assumed to have belonged in the list but these are not numerous enough to materially affect the totals For the rest the author cannot claim that he has done justice to either of these organizations but he has made an honest effort to be fair and impartial to tell the truth as he saw it without prejudice How well he has succeeded is not for him to say It is an interesting story said an officer who served with distinction in the Fifth Michigan cavalry If that shall be the verdict of all the comrades who read it the writer will be satisfied A completely new reprint of the original 1908 edition this Our Civil War Press book has been edited and printed in a clear crisp typeface for easy reading Personal Recollections of Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade in the Civil War - Scholar's Choice Edition J H Kidd,2015-02-19 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant Personal Recollections of a Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade in the Civil War James Harvey Kidd,1908

Personal Recollections of a Cavalryman with Custer's Michigan Cavalry Brigade in the Civil War James Harvey Kidd,2012-11-12 In preparing this book it has not been the purpose of the author to write a complete historical sketch of the Michigan cavalry brigade Such a history would require a volume as large for the record of each regiment and even then it would fall short of doing justice to the patriotic services of that superb organization The narrative contained in the following pages is a story of the personal recollections of one of the troopers who rode with Custer and played a part small it is true but still a part in the tragedy of the civil war As such it is modestly put forth with the hope that it may prove to be an interesting story to those who read it The author also trusts that it may contribute something albeit but a little toward giving Custer s Michigan cavalymen the place in the history of their country which they so richly earned on many fields Doubtless many things have been omitted that ought to have been included and some things written in that it might have been better to leave out These are matters of personal judgment and taste and no man s judgment is infallible The chapters have been written in intervals of leisure during a period of more than twenty years The one on Cedar Creek appeared first in 1886 the Gettysburg campaign in 1889 Brandy Station Kilpatrick s Richmond expedition the Yellow Tavern campaign Buckland Mills Hanover town and Haw s Shop The Trevilian Raid and some other portions have been prepared during the current year 1908 While memory has been the principal guide the strict historical truth has been sought and when there appeared to be a reasonable doubt the official records have been consulted and the writings of others freely drawn upon to verify these recollections The Memoirs of P H Sheridan and H B McClellan s Campaigns of Stuart s Cavalry have been of especial value in this respect the latter helping to give both sides of the picture particularly in the accounts of the battles of Buckland Mills and Yellow Tavern Wade Hampton's official reports were put to similar use in describing the battle of Trevilian Station. So far as mention is made of individual officers and men there is no pretense that the list is complete. Those whose names appear in the text were selected as types. Hundreds of others were equally deserving. The same remark applies to the portraits. These are representative faces. The list could be extended indefinitely. It was intended to include in an appendix a full roster of all the men who served in the Sixth Michigan cavalry and in the other regiments as well but this would have made the book too bulky. By applying to the adjutant general of Michigan the books published by the state giving the record of every man who served in either of the regiments in the brigade can be obtained. The Roll of Honor a list of all those who were killed in action or who died of wounds received in action is as complete as it was possible to make it from the official records. In a very few cases men who were reported missing in action and of whom no further record could be found were assumed to have belonged in the list but these are not numerous enough to materially affect the totals. For the rest the author cannot claim that he has done justice to either of these organizations but he has made an honest effort to be fair and impartial to tell the truth as he saw it without prejudice. How well he has succeeded is not for him to say. It is an interesting story said an officer who served with distinction in the Fifth Michigan cavalry. If that shall be the verdict of all the comrades who read it the writer will be satisfied.

We hope you enjoy the unmatched breadth and depth of this collection from the historical to the just published works.

Personal Recollections of a Cavalryman James Harvey Kidd, 2018-08-04 Personal Recollections of a Cavalryman Large Print by James Harvey Kidd. In preparing this book it has not been the purpose of the author to write a complete historical sketch of the Michigan cavalry brigade. Such a history would require a volume as large for the record of each regiment and even then it would fall short of doing justice to the patriotic services of that superb organization. The narrative contained in the following pages is a story of the personal recollections of one of the troopers who rode with Custer and played a part small it is true but still a part in the tragedy of the civil war. We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection. Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public. The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience
