Judgment and Decision Making David Hardman, 2009-02-09 Judgment and Decision Making is a refreshingly accessible text that explores the wide variety of ways people make judgments. It examines assessments of probability, frequency and causation as well as how decisions are rendered under conditions of risk and uncertainty. Topics covered include dynamic everyday and group decision making, individual differences and the nature of mind and brain in relation to judgment and decision making. Offering up to date theoretical coverage including perspectives from evolutionary psychology and neuroscience, this volume has everything a psychology student needs for BPS accreditation whilst drawing out the practical applications for non psychology students with plentiful examples from business, economics, sport, law and medicine. The latest addition to the BPS Textbooks in Psychology series, this thorough text provides a succinct, reader friendly account of the field of judgment and decision making. Perspectives on Thinking, Judging and Decision Making Karl Halvor Teigen, 2011 This book gives insights into the most recent developments in research on judgement and decision making. It contains contributions from some of the best known experts in this broad field. The book is written for a wide audience and is of interest for anyone who wants to understand and improve his or her ability to make appropriate judgements and decisions. The different chapters cover a great variety of topics related to probability judgements and risk perception, cognitive and emotional processes underlying judgement and the pragmatics of choice behaviour along with related aspects of social cognition. The different chapters, written by researchers from many countries and from different domains including psychology, linguistics, business administration and marketing, reflect the multi disciplinary character of the book.

Risk Behaviour and Risk Management in Business Life Bo Green, 2013-03-09 Risk behaviour and risk management in business life influence a wide range of fields in which only a very limited amount of research has been undertaken These topics have often been treated as if they were theoretically and practically isolated from other fields the so called risk archipelago problem What is actually needed is another focus in which the problem of risk is treated as a central theme The demand for interdisciplinary research means that there is a need for crossing scientific boundaries In approaching risk problems from a holistic perspective there is also a parallel need for linking the scientific and the business worlds Researchers must work closely together in concrete multidisciplinary research projects and in co operation with the industrial world in seeking out and solving research problems of importance This book contains selected and re written papers and key note speeches presented in a risk seminar that Stockholm University organised in June 1997 The seminar in which 200 researchers and practitioners from 26 countries participated was divided into four main topic areas Risk Assessment and Credit Management Psychology in Business Life Risk Management in Small Firms and Law and Business Risk In writing this book the editor invited eight professors from four continents to assist him in introducing the reader to the different and scientific disciplines and in explaining the need for interdisciplinary multidisciplinary and cross disciplinary risk research projects The book consists of eight chapters and the target groups are researchers doctoral and master students at universities and business people working in the risk management area

Judgment and Decision Making at Work Scott Highhouse, Reeshad S. Dalal, Eduardo Salas, 2013-09-05 Employees are constantly making decisions and judgments that have the potential to affect themselves their families their work organizations and on some occasion even the broader societies in which they live A few examples include deciding which job applicant to hire setting a production goal judging one's level of job satisfaction deciding to steal from the cash register agreeing to help organize the company's holiday party forecasting corporate tax rates two years later deciding to report a coworker for sexual harassment and predicting the level of risk inherent in a new business venture In other words a great many topics of interest to organizational researchers ultimately reduce to decisions made by employees Yet numerous entreaties notwithstanding industrial and organizational psychologists typically have not incorporated a judgment and decision making perspective in their research The current book begins to remedy the situation by facilitating cross pollination between the disciplines of organizational psychology and decision making The book describes both laboratory and more naturalistic field research on judgment and decision making and applies it to core topics of interest to industrial and organizational psychologists performance appraisal employee selection individual differences goals leadership teams and stress among others The book also suggests ways in which industrial and organizational psychology research can benefit the discipline of judgment and decision making The authors of the chapters in this book conduct research at the intersection of organizational psychology and decision making and consequently are uniquely positioned to bridging the divide between the two disciplines

Management and Business Ethics Jacob Dahl Rendtorff, 2017-01-05 This book presents a selection of articles with focus on the theoretical foundations of business ethics and in particular on the philosophy of management and on human rights and business This implies identifying and discussing conflicts as well as agreement with regard to the philosophical and other foundations of business and management Despite the general interest in corporate social responsibility and business ethics the contemporary discussion rarely touches upon the normative core and philosophical foundations of business There is a need to discuss the theoretical basis of business ethics and of business and human rights Even though the actions and activities of business may be discussed from a moral perspective not least in the media the judgments and opinions relating to business and management often lack deeper moral reflection and consistency Partly for this reason business ethicists are constantly challenged to provide such moral and philosophical foundations for business ethics and for business and human rights and to communicate them in an understandable manner Such a challenge is also of scientific kind Positions and opinions in the academic field need to be substantiated by thorough moral and theoretical reflection to underpin normative approaches Far too often business ethicists may agree on matters which they approach from different and sometimes irreconcilable philosophical standpoints resulting in superficial agreement but deeper lying disagreement In other cases it may be of high relevance to identify philosophical standpoints that despite conflicting fundamentals may arrive at conclusions acceptable to everyone Corporate Foresight and Strategic Decisions S.
