Basic Group Processes P. B. Group Creativity Paul B. Paulus, Bernard A. Nijstad, 2003-09-04 Creativity often leads to the development of original ideas that are useful or influential and maintaining creativity is crucial for the continued development of organizations in particular and society in general Most research and writing has focused on individual creativity Yet in recent years there has been an increasing acknowledgment of the importance of the social and contextual factors in creativity Even with the information explosion and the growing necessity for specialization the development of innovations still requires group interaction at various stages in the creative process Most organizations increasingly rely on the work of creative teams where each individual is an expert in a particular area This volume summarizes the exciting new research developments on the processes involved in group creativity and innovation and explores the relationship between group processes group context and creativity It draws from a broad range of research perspectives including those investigating cognition groups creativity information systems and organizational psychology These different perspectives have been brought together in one volume in order to focus attention on this developing literature and its implications for theory and application The chapters in this volume are organized into two sections The first focuses on how group decision making is affected by factors such as cognitive fixation and flexibility group diversity minority dissent group decision making brainstorming and group support systems Special attention is devoted to the various processes and conditions that can inhibit or facilitate group creativity The second section explores how various contextual and environmental factors affect the creative processes of groups The chapters explore issues of group autonomy group socialization mentoring team innovation knowledge transfer and creativity at the level of cultures and societies The research presented in this section makes it clear that a full understanding of group creativity cannot be accomplished without adequate attention to the group environment It will be a useful source of information for scholars practitioners and students wishing to understand and facilitate group creativity concrete key events in the process of radicalization providing a useful theoretical framework that summarizes the current state of the art research on radicalization and deradicalization A model is presented in which a distinction is made between different levels of radicalization and deradicalization with key underlying psychological needs discussed the need for identity justice significance and sensation The authors also describe what makes people resilient against messages from the outside world when they belong to an extremist group and discuss observable events which may trigger a person to radicalize further or to deradicalize Including real world examples and clear guidelines for interventions aimed at prevention of radicalization and stimulation of deradicalization this is essential reading for policy makers researchers practitioners and students interested in this crucial societal issue

Cognitive Processes in Individual and Collective Creativity: A Cross-Cultural Perspective Chang Liu, Linden John Ball, Haiying Long, Wangbing Shen, 2019-12-30 Creativity the highest level of human wisdom has become an increasingly important concept in different fields of psychological enquiry particularly because it is portrayed as contributing to many aspects of society including personal development economic prosperity and technological advancement However although considerable research attention from a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds has focused on trying to understand creativity the specific nature of creativity its theoretical underpinnings and cognitive mechanisms remain unclear not least when it comes to the understanding of creativity at the individual level and creativity at the collective level On the one hand there are crucial distinctions between individual and collective creativity On the other hand the process of being creative involves not only independent or individual efforts but also interdependent or collective efforts Understanding these differences and interrelationships is crucially important in studies of creativity In this Research Topic we bring together research from a wide variety of cognitive and psychological approaches and perspectives in order to provide a comprehensive and in depth understanding of creativity at both the individual and collective levels Furthermore cognitive mechanisms in the creativity process are unavoidably affected by sociocultural factors and these mechanisms look different across cultures particularly between Eastern cultures and Western cultures two worlds that often imply dramatically dissimilar values and perspectives Despite the fact that many studies have compared and contrasted these two cultures in various respects little research has focused on the specific topic of cultural variation in creative cognition In addition very few studies have examined the differences in the cognitive mechanisms underpinning the cultural variations that can be observed at a surface level This Research Topic aims to fill this gap in the literature and examine the cognitive processes and mechanisms in the creativity process at both individual and collective levels across different cultures by using theoretical and empirical evidence
