University of Oregon, 1928 Journalism Research that Matters Valérie Bélair-Gagnon, Nikki Usher, 2021 It is now well established that the long time economic model on which the news industry has relied is no longer sustainable Facebook Google and declining levels of popular trust in the media have been major contributors to this situation Simultaneously the closure of local media outlets across the country has left many areas without access to regional news compounded the distance between media and publics and further eroded civic engagement Despite the looming crisis in journalism a research practice gap plagues the news industry This book argues that an underappreciated factor in the news crisis is a potentially symbiotic relationship between journalism studies and the industry that it researches As this book contends scholars must think about their work in a public context and journalists too need to listen to media scholars and take the research that they do seriously Including contributions from journalists and academics Journalism Research That Matters offers journalists a guide on what they need to know and journalism scholars a call to action for what kind of research they can do to best help the news industry reckon with disruption The book looks at new research developments surrounding audience behavior social networks and journalism business models the challenges that scholars face in making their research available to the public and to journalists the financial survival of quality news and information and blind spots in the way that researchers and journalists do their work especially around race diversity and inequality A final section includes contributions from journalists about how researchers can better engage on the ground with newsrooms and media professionals The Routledge Companion to Local Media and Journalism Agnes Gulyas, David Baines, 2020-04-19 This comprehensive edited collection provides key contributions in the field mapping out fundamental topics and analysing current trends through an international lens Offering a collection of invited contributions from scholars across the world the volume is structured in seven parts each exploring an aspect of local media and journalism It brings together and consolidates the latest research

European Data Protection Regulation, Journalism, and Traditional Publishers Senior Lecturer in Law David Erdos,2020-01-02 The tension between freedom of expression and European personal data protection regulation is unmistakable Nowhere is this more apparent than in its interface with professional journalism and other traditional publishers including artists writers and academics This book systematically explores how that tension has been managed across thirty one European States from the 1970s through to the 2010s including under the General Data Protection Regulation GDPR It is found that notwithstanding confusing laws data authorities have regulated journalism through contextual rights balancing However they have struggled to establish a clear standard of strictness or ensure consistent enforcement Their stance regarding other publishers has been more confused whilst academics have been subject to onerous restrictions developed for medical and related research other writers and artists have been largely ignored This book suggests that contextual rights balancing should be extended to all traditional publishers and systematically developed through robust co regulation that draws on the strength of both statutory control and self regulation

Barbie Zelizer, 2004-04-29 Barbie Zelizer provides enormous service to students and scholars with this comprehensive and highly persuasive critique of the literature in and about journalism as both process and practice as a profession and an industry. Zelizer takes a step back to look at what we know about news and she does not pull her punches in pointing out what we do not know. Linda Steiner, Rutgers University. Zelizer's encyclopedic review of scholarly studies of journalism fills an important need for researchers and comparing that scholarship across disciplines, generations and countries makes it even more valuable. Her analyses will be invaluable for media research and should also spur interest in journalism among the social science and other disciplines she studied. The book is an impressive achievement. Herbert J. Gans, Columbia University and author of Democracy and the News. Taking Journalism Seriously is a refulgent analysis of the condition of journalism studies. Zelizer has produced a critical and lasting contribution to our understanding of the position of news journalism and journalism practice within the disciplines of political science, sociology, psychology, philosophy, language and cultural studies. This excellent book is an engaging and sophisticated treatise on both the historical and contemporary theoretical perspectives of journalism scholarship. Howard Tumber, City University London. How have scholars tended to conceptualize news, newsmaking, journalism, journalists and the news media? Which explanatory frames have they used to explore journalistic practice? From which fields of inquiry have they borrowed in shaping their assumptions about how journalism works? In Taking Journalism Seriously: News and the Academy, author Barbie Zelizer discusses questions about the viability of the field of journalism scholarship and examines journalism as a discipline, a profession, a practice and a cultural phenomenon. Taking Journalism Seriously argues that scholars have remained too entrenched within their own disciplinary areas, resulting in isolated bodies of scholarship. This is the first book to critically survey journalism scholarship in one volume and organize it by disparate fields. The book reviews existing journalism research in such diverse fields as sociology, history, language studies, political science and cultural analysis and dissects the most prevalent and understated research in each discipline. The author provides a critical mapping of the field of journalism studies and encourages academics to look at journalism from various disciplinary perspectives. Taking Journalism Seriously advocates a realignment of the ways in which journalism has traditionally been conceptualized and urges scholars to think anew about what journalism is as well as reflect on why they see it as they do. Taking Journalism Seriously is designed for undergraduate and graduate students in advanced courses on Journalism and Journalism Studies. It will also be of interest to scholars, academics and researchers in the fields of Journalism, Communication, Media Studies, Sociology and Cultural Studies.
