have managed to survive the apocalypse by cooking for those that do the work of rebuilding Sometimes they worked for noble men and sometimes for evil opportunists but they survived by doing it well When they become the last survivors by hiding from an attack and they are only cooking for themselves they begin to think surviving may not be enough After years of living through a zombie apocalypse apart and together they find themselves alone again and in need of a new home As they strike out together to search they begin to explore regrets and unfinished business from their past lives They might lose themselves for a while in their shared art of preparing the food they eat but they must also keep from being eaten by the monsters that roam the Earth both living and undead Chef David Sharp Short Order Shaw Porter Doc John Brown and a mute boy they call Mutt are on a journey to tie up their many loose ends They will discover that their past actions have had far reaching consequences They may find destruction or redemption but they will have to fight the past themselves and the walking dead every step of the way

Loose Ends Russell Reising, 1996 In this study of American cultural production from the colonial era to the present Russell Reising takes up the loose ends of popular American narratives to craft a new theory of narrative closure In the range of works examined here from Phillis Wheatley's poetry to Herman Melville's Israel Potter from Henry James's The Jolly Corner to the Disney Studio's Dumbo Reising finds endings that violate all existing theories of closure and narratives that expose the often unarticulated issues that inspired these texts Reising suggests that these non endings entirely refocus the narrative structures they appear to conclude accentuate the narrative stresses and ideological fissures that the texts seem to suppress and reveal shadow narratives that trail alongside the dominant story line He argues that unless the reader notices the ruptures in the closing moments of these works the social and historical moments in which the narrative and the reader are embedded will be missed This reading not only offers new interpretive possibilities but also uncovers startling affinities between the poetry of Phillis Wheatley and the fiction of Henry James between Charles Brockden Brown's Wieland and Melville's least studied novel and between Emily Dickinson's poem I Started Early Took My Dog and Disney's animated classic Pursuing the implications of these failed moments of closure Reising elaborates on topics ranging from the roots of domestic violence and mass murder in early American religious texts to the pornographic imperative of mid century nature writing and from James's descent into naturalist and feminist fiction to Dumbo's explosive projection of commercial racial and political agendas for postwar U S culture
