Children, Film and Literacy Becky Parry,2013-10-22 Children Film and Literacy explores the role of film in children s lives The films children engage in provide them with imaginative spaces in which they create play and perform familiar and unfamiliar fantasy and everyday narratives and this narrative play is closely connected to identity literacy and textual practices Family is key to the encouragement of this social play and at school the playground is also an important site for this activity However in the literacy classroom some children encounter a discontinuity between their experiences of narrative at home and those that are valued in school Through film children develop understandings of the common characteristics of narrative and the particular language of film This book demonstrates the ways in which children are able to express and develop distinct and complex understandings of narrative that is to say where they can draw on their own experiences including those in a moving image form Children whose primary experiences of narrative are moving images face particular challenges when their experiences are not given opportunities for expression in the classroom and this has urgent implications for the teaching of literacy The Sagas of the Icelanders Jane Smiley,2005-02-24 In Iceland the age of the Vikings is also known as the Saga Age A unique body of medieval literature the Sagas rank with the world s great literary treasures as epic as Homer as deep in tragedy as Sophocles as engagingly human as Shakespeare Set around the turn of the last millennium these stories depict with an astonishingly modern realism the lives and deeds of the Norse men and women who first settled in Iceland and of their descendants who ventured farther west to Greenland and ultimately North America Sailing as far from the archetypal heroic adventure as the long ships did from home the Sagas are written with psychological intensity peopled by characters with depth and explore perennial human issues like love hate fate and freedom Teaching Information Literacy Reframed Joanna M.
