San Franciscos Interurban To San Mateo Images Of Rail Images Of Rail:

San Francisco's Interurban to San Mateo Robert Townley, Walter Rice, Emiliano Echeverria, Don Holmgren, 2005 It is strange to think that an electric commuter rail line rivaling BART in efficiency speed and comfort ran over 100 years ago between San Francisco and San Mateo but run it did The 40 Line or San Mateo Interurban began in 1892 with an initial segment operating between Market and Steuart Streets out to the county limits on San Jose Avenue Three years later the line reached Baden in present day South San Francisco and by 1903 service was opened all the way to downtown San Mateo During the line's heyday there was talk of extending it down the peninsula from San Mateo to Palo Alto to connect with the Peninsular Railway to San Jose The 1906 earthquake put this plan on hold Following much the same route as today's Mission Street El Camino Real and Caltrain the San Mateo Interurban carried over four million passengers a year along its main and spur lines until 1949 when the system was shut down amidst much fanfare Railways of San Francisco Paul C.

Trimble, 2004 It may be hard to believe now but San Francisco was once dominated by railways Before private cars crowded this hemmed in city rail was the only way to get around the challenging terrain and the rail industry rose to the task with many innovative systems Some of these were herculean with massive bores through rocky hills or elaborate cable and counterweight systems to handle steep inclines Others were simpler horse drawn affairs that took passengers from the downtown and waterfront areas to outlying districts The distinct flavor of San Francisco's neighborhoods owes much to the early rails as these cars enabled residents to form their own enclaves and still interact with the commercial heart of the city Some rail systems presaged today's commuter lifestyle one even ran all the way down Mission Street to far off San Mateo Only a few of the many rail systems that once served this city remain San Francisco's Market Street Railway Walt Vielbaum, Philip Hoffman, Grant Ute, Robert Townley, 2005-03-23 The Market Street Railway Company thrived in an age when rails ruled San Francisco Spanning the Roaring Twenties the Great Depression and the boom times of World War II it had a long and legendary lifetime that is deeply ingrained in the city's early identity Gradually however it became challenged by the emergence of the automobile cheaper motor coaches and nickel jitneys competing cars on the same routes The MSRY painted the fronts of its cars white to show up well in San Francisco's misty weather and for many years people called them the White Front cars Franchise competition and city regulations undid MSRY and its assets were absorbed into MUNI in 1944 However the name lives on as the nonprofit Market Street Railway organization dedicated to preserving the history of this company and also to retrofitting early streetcars from across the globe putting them back in service on Market Street Interurban

Railways of the Bay Area Paul Castelhun Trimble, 1977 Fascinating history of the numerous electric street railways interurbans that once criss crossed northern California and the San Francisco Bay area Covers the Interurban Electric Railway the Big Red Cars the Key System the Market Street Railway the Northwestern Pacific Railroad the Peninsular Railway the Petaluma Santa Rosa Railroad the Sacramento Northern and the San Francisco Napa Calistoga Railway There is a roster and map for each railroad line The book also discusses the Bay area ferry lines with rosters smaller streetcar lines and the what ifs represented by BART Illustrated throughout with black and white photos With list of car builders and ferryboat builders 199 pages with index The Western Railroader, for the Western Railroad Fan ,1972 San Francisco's Interurban to San Mateo Walter Vielbaum,Robert Townley,Walter Rice,2005-09 It s strange to think that an electric commuter rail line rivaling BART in efficiency speed and comfort ran over 100 years ago between San Francisco and San Mateo but run it did The 40 Line or San Mateo Interurban began in 1892 with an initial segment operating between Market and Steuart Streets out to the county limits on San Jose Avenue Three years later the line reached Baden in present day South San Francisco and by 1903 service was opened all the way to downtown San Mateo During the line s heyday there was talk of extending it down the peninsula from San Mateo to Palo Alto to connect with the Peninsular Railway to San Jose The 1906 earthquake put this plan on hold Following much the same route as today s Mission Street El Camino Real and Caltrain the San Mateo Interurban carried over four million passengers a year along its main and spur lines until 1949 when the system was shut down amidst much fanfare Special Report - Highway Research Board National Research Council (U.S.).
