El Castillo Richard Frederick Maddox,1993 In his innovative ethnographic history of the southwestern Spanish town of Aracena Richard Maddox explores how tradition has been authored what it has authorized and to what extent it has been authoritative His investigation of the cultural political and religious discourses and practices of various socioeconomic groups in Aracena offers a richly detailed view of how both leading citizens and ordinary townspeople have interpreted used and contested traditions over the last three centuries Maddox argues that we can best understand culture in complex societies by taking into account the ways in which institutionally generated discourses and practices articulate with the informal improvisational and commonsense speech and customs that guide the conduct of everyday life He bases his study on a wide range of published and unpublished materials including biographies notarial records wills tax and voting lists historical surveys records of property transactions and town council meetings privately held documents and interviews with men and women of Aracena Through a genealogical approach to traditional culture Maddox demonstrates that traditions repeatedly have been transformed and reinvented in accordance with shifts in relationships of power and in response to changing political and socioeconomic conditions
