

The Teacher's Rainbow

RED is for the love of each child you come to know,
For the way you understand them and watch them grow.

ORANGE is for being creative and enthusiastic every day,
And making sure that your lessons are fun in every way.

YELLOW is for the joy of knowing your teaching hand,
Has helped a child who's struggled to finally understand.

GREEN is the color for growing in spirit and in mind,
And for inspiring your students to take risks all of the time.

BLUE is your patience that is needed each and every day,
For the many questions learning minds want to convey.

VIOLET is for the wisdom you've learned along the way,
That has helped ease so many student's while making their day.

INDIGO is for your commitment as you lead the way,
Your kindness and motivation is appreciated every day.

A Cultural-Historical Study of Children Learning Science Marilyn Fleer,Niklas Pramling,2014-10-01 This book moves beyond the traditional constructivist and social constructivist view of learning and development in science It draws upon cultural historical theory in order to theorise early childhood science education in relation to our currently globalised education contexts The book argues that concept development in science for young children can be better theorised by using Vygotsky

s concept of Imagination and creativity Vygotsky s theory of play and his work on higher mental functions particularly the concept of inter and intrapsychological functioning Key concepts are extracted from the theoretical section of the book and used as categories for analysis in presenting evidence and new ideas in the second section of the book In this second part of the book the authors examine how science knowledge has been constructed within particular countries around the globe where empirical research in early childhood science education has occurred The third part of the book examines the nature of the encounter between the teacher and the child during science learning and teaching In the final part of the book the authors look closely at the range of models and approaches to the teaching of early childhood science that have been made available to early childhood teachers to guide their planning and teaching They conclude the book with a theoretical discussion of the cultural historical foundation for early childhood science education followed by a model of teaching scientific concepts to young children in play based settings including homes and community contexts
