Samuel Beckett's Real Silence:

Samuel Beckett's Real Silence Helene Louise Baldwin, 1981 Exploring the Christian symbolism throughout a major portion of Beckett's mature work particularly Molloy Malone Dies The Unnamable Watt Not I The Lost Ones and Waiting for Godot this book argues that Beckett is a writer of deep religious concern not in the orthodox sense but in a sense fully as time honored The path to direct experience of Absolute or Unconditional Being is traced through the classic stages of the quest detachment darkness silence trance illumination and revelation with examples from both the content and structure of the works A final chapter distinguishes among the several ironic tones that Beckett employs to reveal the profound reverence that is so often misread as cynicism It is fitting that an author so frequently discussed in religious terms his 1969 Nobel award cited him for singing the dies irae of the human race should finally be read as a religious writer Samuel Beckett's writing with its rich dark ambiguity has been widely acknowledged for its brilliance but variously interpreted in its meaning Nearly all critics recognize the religious allusions and symbols present throughout the Beckettian oeuvre but few have attempted to come to terms with them preferring to regard these recurring themes and images as atheistic irony This book addresses that deficiency by arguing that Beckett's major works may be seen as a cumulative metaphor for the mystic quest specifically the negative way of renunciation that stands in contrast to the affirmative orthodoxy of T S Eliot for example Dr Baldwin accomplishes this task by citing the many echoes within Beckett's prose of the great Christian mystics of history Augustine Pascal Langland Dante many of whom are clearly the sources drawn upon in Beckett's non stop allusiveness and by demonstrating Beckett's parallels with modern Christian mystics especially Simone Weil whose themes in Waiting for God are hauntingly evoked in Waiting for Godot and much of the rest of the Beckettian canon The Dramatic Works of Samuel Beckett Charles A. Carpenter, 2011-10-13 A selectively comprehensive bibliography of the vast literature about Samuel Beckett's dramatic works arranged for the efficient and convenient use of scholars on all levels Samuel Beckett David Pattie, 2000-11-23 Samuel Beckett's work forever changed the concepts of literature and theatre His work remains a core part of introductory courses on literary history drama theatre or performance and also features in more specialist modules such as Modernism or The Absurd Samuel Beckett is a comprehensive introduction to his life and work as well as an outline of the critical issues surrounding his work This guidebook leaves judgements up to the student by explaining the full range of often very different critical views and interpretations and offers guides to further reading in each area discussed Critique of Beckett Criticism Peter John Murphy, 1994 A survey of Beckett criticism in English French and German Samuel Beckett 1906-1989 is an important figure in 20th century literary history his plays such as Waiting for Godot and Endgame have acquired a world wide reputation and his novels have proved important touchstones for the critical debates in contemporary literary theory Born in Dublin Beckett spent most of his writing life in France and wrote equally well in French and English his German was also fluent allowing him to direct his own plays in German theatres Any attempt to deal with Beckett must therefore consider the critical response his works have provoked in all three languages A Critique of Beckett Criticism is the first attempt in book form to give a comprehensive survey of the history and scope of Beckett criticism in French English and German Three parallel chapters examine the three major strands of Beckett criticism retracing its development using a historical perspective and pointing out different trends currents and fashions in opinion Directions for further research are also suggested P J MURPHY is a lecturer in contemporary British literature at the University College of the Cariboo British Columbia WERNER HUBER is a professor of English literature at Chemnitz University of Technology ROLF BREUER is professor of English literature at the University of Paderborn KONRAD SCHOELL is professor of French literature at the Pädagogische Hochschule Erfurt
