can't help but hope the longing in her gaze has nothing to do with softball. Ashton has few regrets but one is turning down Razor's request for a date back in college. Ashton can't think about what if's now or how great Razor looks or her dormant feelings stirring. A crisis has left the university softball team without a catcher and their best solution is the one person Ashton never expected to see again. Ashton and Razor's coach/player dynamic gets tricky as the sparks fly faster than a line drive. As they struggle with old feelings and new discoveries the season seems endless. Plus Razor is sure Ashton won't want to explore romantic possibilities once she discovers the real reason Razor abruptly departed the team all those years ago.

Congress. House. Committee on Banking and Currency, 1949      National Catholic Welfare Council Bulletin, 1927      A Life Disturbed Merrel D. Clubb, Jr., 2011-06-01

An exceptional storyteller with an analytical eye Merrel Clubb has gathered the letters he sent his parents from the Pacific Theater of World War II and his subsequent reflections on that war and on his life into a kind of then and now memoir. The letters are a treasure trove of humor, anxiety and hope revealing a young man thrust into a war that he does not understand. Through this exceptional portal on the past we learn of the tragic absurdity of war of a soldier trained for naval warfare but sent into land battle with weapons he'd never before fired of command post latrines at which even commanding officers were sitting ducks of the ghoulish trophies and mementos that soldiers collected from the battlefields. The letters describe a vivid cast of characters from Clubb's childhood friend who instilled a love of poetry in his comrades to the hillbilly singer and the prostitute with whom the young Clubb had varied amorous adventures. But the most compelling figure in this narrative is of course Clubb himself an intellectual who carried Jane Austen and Joseph Conrad along with his tommy gun who used books as a fortification for his foxhole discovering upon waking one morning that Ouspensky stopped a bullet and who in a darkly humorous moment wrote home that Plato is pretty consoling because I can always think that somewhere there is a perfect hell of a navy of which this is but an imitation or representation. Returning to these letters years later prompts Clubb to look again at the Second World War and at the atomic bomb that ended it. In an analysis as useful to understanding our own historical moment as it is to reconsidering the past Clubb counters the conventional wisdom shared by veterans and civilians alike particularly regarding the concept of a just war. For Clubb as for so many veterans the war does not end with the victory over Japan. Despite the intervening years Clubb finds that the haunting episodes experienced over half a century ago echo still. Even in the solitude of the forest in the hunting parties he meets in the animals he himself kills he hears again the sound of battle sees again the faces of the victims of war. Part letters part memoir and part scholarly analysis this volume ranges over a vast colorful and weighted territory. From the battles and respites in the Pacific Islands to the night clubs and call girls of mainland San Francisco and San Diego from the relative quiet of his aptly named hometown Stillwater to the similarly quiet Montana backcountry Clubb's narrative explores the psychological terrain of a life disturbed and forever changed by
