Prepare for Saints Steven Watson, 2012-09-05 Perhaps the oddest and most influential collaboration in the history of American modernism was hatched in 1926 when a young Virgil Thomson knocked on Gertrude Stein's door in Paris Eight years later their opera Four Saints in Three Acts became a sensation the longest running opera in Broadway history to date and the most widely reported cultural event of its time Four Saints was proclaimed the birth of a new art form a cellophane fantasy cubism on stage It swept the public imagination inspiring new art and new language and defied every convention of what an opera should be Everything about it was revolutionary Stein's abstract text and Thomson's homespun music the all black cast the costumes and the combustible sets Moving from the Wadsworth Atheneum to Broadway Four Saints was the first popular modernist production It brought modernism with all its flamboyant outrage against convention into the mainstream This is the story of how that opera came to be It involves artists writers musicians salon hostesses and an underwear manufacturer with an appetite for publicity The opera's success depended on a handful of Harvard trained men who shaped America's first museums of modern art The elaborately intertwined lives of the collaborators provide a window onto the pioneering generation that defined modern taste in America in the 1920s and 1930s A brilliant cultural historian with a talent for bringing the past to life Steven Watson spent ten years researching and writing this book interviewing many of the collaborators and performers Prepare for Saints is the first book to describe this pivotal moment in American cultural history It does so with a spirit and irreverence worthy of its subject

Time in Contemporary Musical Thought Jonathan D.

Kramer, 2015-12-22 The articles in this collection create an interdisciplinary perspective While attempting no unified vision it approaches the subject from a variety of perspectives aesthetics psychology sociology ethnomusicology compositional practice and semiotics While all composers are necessarily concerned with time and while all theorists deal at least indirectly with music as a temporal phenomenon the study of musical time has been fragmented It is appropriate that no clear paradigm model or direction has yet emerged in the study of musical time since time itself is both pervasive and elusive

Neoconstructivism Scott Johnson, 2010 Arguments over the developmental origins of human knowledge are ancient founded in the writings of Plato Aristotle Descartes Hume and Kant They have also persisted long enough to become a core area of inquiry in cognitive and developmental science Empirical contributions to these debates however appeared only in the last century when Jean Piaget offered the first viable theory of knowledge acquisition that centered on the great themes discussed by Kant object space time and causality The essence of Piaget's theory is constructivism The building of concepts from simpler perceptual and cognitive precursors in particular from experience gained through manual behaviors and observation The constructivist view was disputed by a generation of researchers dedicated to the idea of the competent infant endowed with knowledge say of permanent objects that emerged prior to facile manual behaviors Taking this possibility further it has been proposed that many fundamental cognitive mechanisms reasoning event prediction decision making hypothesis testing and deduction operate independently of all experience and are in this sense innate The competent infant view has an intuitive appeal attested to by its widespread popularity and it enjoys a kind of parsimony It avoids the supposed philosophical pitfall posed by having to account for novel forms of knowledge in inductive learners But this view leaves unaddressed a vital challenge to understand the mechanisms by which new knowledge arises This challenge has now been met The neoconstructivist approach is rooted in Piaget's constructivist emphasis on developmental mechanisms yet also reflects modern advances in our understanding of learning mechanisms cortical development and modeling This book brings together for the first time theoretical views that embrace computational models and developmental neurobiology and emphasize the interplay of time experience and cortical architecture to explain emergent knowledge with an empirical line of research identifying a set of general purpose sensory perceptual and learning mechanisms that guide knowledge acquisition across different domains and through development
