He is holding a knife in his right hand, with the blade pointing towards the left. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the contours of his muscles and the texture of his skin. setting in more than half of Daniel Defoe's novels and often offer a new beginning for his characters In the first full length study of Defoe and colonialism Dennis Todd explores why the New World loomed so large in Defoe's imagination By focusing on the historical contexts that informed Defoe's depiction of American Indians African slaves and white indentured servants Dennis Todd investigates the colonial assumptions that shaped his novels and at the same time uncovers how Defoe used details of the American experience in complex often figurative ways to explore the psychological bases of the profound conversions and transformations that his heroes and heroines undergo And by examining what Defoe knew and did not know about America what he falsely believed and what he knowingly falsified Defoe's America probes the doubts hesitations and contradictions he had about the colonial project he so fervently promoted Masculinity and the New Imperialism Bradley Deane, 2014-05-29 At the end of the nineteenth century the zenith of its imperial chauvinism and jingoistic fervour Britain's empire was bolstered by a surprising new ideal of manliness one that seemed less English than foreign less concerned with moral development than perpetual competition less civilized than savage This study examines the revision of manly ideals in relation to an ideological upheaval whereby the liberal imperialism of Gladstone was eclipsed by the New Imperialism of Disraeli and his successors Analyzing such popular genres as lost world novels school stories and early science fiction it charts the decline of mid century ideals of manly self control and the rise of new dreams of gamesmanship and frank brutality It reveals moreover the dependence of imperial masculinity on real and imagined exchanges between men of different nations and races so that visions of hybrid masculinities and honorable rivalries energized Britain's sense of its New Imperialist destiny

A major contribution to the cultural and literary history of the Victorian age Rule of Darkness maps the complex relationship between Victorian literary forms genres and theories and imperialist racist ideology Critics and cultural historians have usually regarded the Empire as being of marginal importance to early and mid Victorian writers Patrick Brantlinger asserts that the Empire was central to British culture as a source of ideological and artistic energy both supported by and lending support to widespread belief in racial superiority the need to transform savagery into civilization and the urgency of promoting emigration Rule of Darkness brings together material from public records memoirs popular culture and canonical literature Brantlinger explores the influence of the novels of Captain Frederick Marryat pioneer of British adolescent adventure fiction and shows the importance of William Makepeace Thackeray's experience of India to his novels He treats a number of Victorian best sellers previously ignored by literary historians including the Anglo-Indian writer Philip Meadows

Taylor's Confessions of a Thug and Seeta Brantlinger situates explorers' narratives and travelogues by such famous author-adventurers as David Livingstone and Sir Richard Burton in relation to other forms of Victorian and Edwardian prose. Through readings of works by Arthur Conan Doyle, Joseph Conrad, H. Rider Haggard, Rudyard Kipling, John Hobson, and many others, he considers representations of Africa, India, and other non-British parts of the world in both fiction and nonfiction. The most comprehensive study yet of literature and imperialism in the early and mid-Victorian years, Rule of Darkness offers in addition a revisionary interpretation of imperialism as a significant factor in later British cultural history from the 1880s to World War I. It is essential reading for anyone concerned with Victorian culture and society and more generally with the relationship between Victorian writers and imperialism and between racist ideology and patterns of domination in modern history.
