Kindlmann,2022-09-30 Snow leopard Panthera uncia is an endangered species and its population size is steadily declining The main threats to the snow leopard include illegal trade conflict with locals human snow leopard conflict lack of conservation awareness and policy and climate change To avoid its extinction we badly need a good knowledge of its ecology distribution and population dynamics including interactions with its prey which will take into account various scenarios of changes in climate and human impact on snow leopard This book aims to put together a considerable amount of unpublished data collected by the co author of most of the chapters Bikram Shrestha which might be useful for other researchers working on snow leopard In addition researchers might find it useful to have a key for determining the diet of snow leopard based on remnants of its food in its scats Last but not least based on the difficulty we experienced trying to compare and combine different sets of results we propose a general methodology for collecting data Thus this book is not an all encompassing compendium but an attempt to fill some gaps in the literature and to show how to publish new data on snow leopard in a useful and workable way The first part describing the main features of snow leopard and its main prey ecology is followed by a comprehensive review of data available on its abundance and threats to its survival The third most extensive part the substance of the book presents new data from 15 years of intensive camera trapping combined with scat sampling These data are analyzed by means of advances GIS and genetic techniques which yields a large amount of conservation implications The purpose of this book is to provide a tool for both environmental managers and researchers to find quickly what is known about this species for conservation planning and for an effective protection of snow leopard. However, enthusiasts interested in wild cats may welcome the book too.

Ecology and Literatures in English Françoise Besson, 2018-12-14 In all latitudes, writers hold out a mirror leading the reader to awareness by telling real or imaginary stories about people of good will who try to save what can be saved and about animals showing humans the way to follow. Such tales argue that in spite of all destructions and tragedies, if we are just aware of and connected to the real world around us, to the blade of grass at our feet and the star above our heads, there is hope in a reconciliation with the Earth. This may start with the emergence or rather the return of a nonverbal language restoring the connection between human beings and the nonhuman world through a form of communication beyond verbalization. Through a journey in Anglophone literature with examples taken from Aboriginal, African, American, English, Canadian and Indian works, this book shows the role played by literature in the protection of the planet. It argues that literature reveals the fundamental idea that everything is connected and that it is only when most people are aware of this connection that the world will change. Exactly as a tree is connected with all the animal life in and around it, texts show that nothing should be separated. From Shakespeare's theatre to ecopoetics, from travel writing to detective novels, from children's books to novels, all literary genres show that literature responds to the violence destroying lands, men and nonhuman creatures whose voices can be heard through texts.
