The Economics of Auditing Dan A. Simunic, 2024-12-12 The financial information provided to governments creditors investors etc by businesses has been verified by auditors since ancient times In its modern form the independent public accounting profession has its roots in 19th century Scotland A distinctive feature of this profession is that it consists of private for profit businesses operating as sole practitioners partnerships but mostly as large accounting firms The question naturally arises why should users of financial information provided by private for profit firms place trust in the verification of that information by other private for profit firms This is the interesting and complex economic issue that underlies research in what has come to be called the economics of auditing The author is one of the first researchers in this area This book traces the development of this important stream of research that applies economic analysis to the study of financial statement audits by professional public accounting firms It offers a narrative commentary along with a series of previously unpublished papers that the author presented during the 1970 s at Accounting Research workshops at the University of Chicago as part of his dissertation research that ultimately led to one of the bedrock papers in the field It provides an explanation and discussion of the economic regulatory and research environment at that time The book concludes with a discussion of important but currently unanswered questions in the field that flow from the author s thesis research but remain unresolved It will be of significant interest to advanced students and academics who are engaged in developing their own research programs as well as to any researcher who is working in the area of the economics of auditing Compressed Development D. Hugh Whittaker, Timothy Sturgeon, Toshie Okita, Tianbiao Zhu, 2020-09-15 This book proposes a new way to approach comparative international development by focusing on time and timing in economic and social development The UK industrialized over two centuries and then started to de industrialize in the late 1960s Today the most rapid developers experience aspects of industrialization and de industrialization simultaneously It is no longer clear that industrialization offers the path of growth it once did industrialization has become thin Demographic and social challenges that earlier developers faced sequentially now come at the same time Rapid growers experience compression most acutely but the spatial and temporal fusing of past and present is widespread affecting high middle and lower income countries alike Timing refers to the differences in historical periods in which development takes place The geopolitical institutional and technological environment for countries recently integrated into the global economy has been vastly different from that of the preceding postwar decades of embedded liberalism although it does contain echoes of the first globalization and first financialization a century ago The first era of liberalism did not end well and the second is similarly foundering on the rocks of nationalism and protectionism as it is being battered by a global pandemic The authors propose an interdisciplinary conceptual framework based on co evolving state market and organization technology dyads which will help readers make sense of contemporary development across multiple societies sectors and geographies and provide a template for historical comparison

Sustainable Industrialization in Africa Banji Oyelaran-Oyeyinka, Padmashree Gehl Sampath, 2016-04-29 Sustainable Industrialization in Africa explores the issues that confront development policy in the context of the MDGs and the post 2015 development agenda from an African perspective The book argues that development is an ultimate outcome of sustainable equitable industrialization and that any development agenda for the future has to ensure that industrialization is fostered in a way that makes economies independent and responsive to the needs of all citizens Future challenges for sustainable industrialization in Africa based upon the differences in its current industrialization trajectories are discussed to ensure that industrial growth results in positive economic and social outcomes in the context of the post 2015 development agenda

Industries, Firms, and Jobs George Farkas, Paula England, 1988-07-31 This book is a welcome reassertion of an old tradition of interdisciplinary research That tradition has tended to atrophy in the last decade largely because of an enormous expansion of the domain of neoclassical economics The expansion has fed on two scientific developments first human capital theory second contract theory Both developments have taken phenomena critical to the operation of the economy but previously understood in terms of categories separate and distinct from those with which economists generally work and sought to apply the same analytical techniques that we use to understand other economic problems Human capital theory has applied conventional techniques to questions of labor supply It began this endeavor with the supply of trained labor and then expanded to a general theory of labor supply by broadening the analysis to the allocation of time over the individual's life the interdependencies of supply decisions within the family and finally to the formation of the family itself Similarly contract theory has moved from a theory that explains the existence of classical economic institutions to a theory of their formation and internal operation The hallmark of both of these developments is the extension and application of analytical techniques based on purposive maximization under constraints and the interaction of individual decision makers through a competitive market or its analogue

Domestic and Multinational Banking (RLE Banking & Finance) Rae Weston, 2013-01-04 This book examines the fundamental nature of banking in the economy of the 1970s and 80s arguing that banking cannot be properly understood unless it is regarded as the retailing of financial services In analysing the nature of banking the book demonstrates how banking might operate without regulatory constraints surveys the patterns of regulatory constraint in a wide range of economies analysis the effects of these various forms of constraint on the operation of a previously unregulated bank examines the move to multinational banking explores risks peculiar to multinational banking whilst providing a diagrammatic illustration of those risks When originally published this was one of the first books to treat banking from both a theoretical and empirical perspective and is unique in reviewing the case of a completely unregulated commercial bank and following the progression of banking through to the multinational stage

Economic Wealth Creation and the Social Division of Labour Robert P. Gilles, 2018-07-26 This textbook introduces and develops new tools to understand the recent economic crisis and how desirable economic policies can be adopted Gilles provides new institutional concepts for wealth creation such as network economies which are based on the social division of labour This volume investigates the formation of networks and hierarchical authority organisations with a focus on the role of trust Gilles also looks at the theory of growth and development using real world examples and problem sets to put into practice This title is suitable reading for undergraduate MSc and postgraduate students in microeconomic analysis economic theory and political economy
