Seven December 1941 The Air Force Story:

7 December 1941: The Air Force Story, 1991 7 December 1941 Leatrice R. Arakaki, John R. Kuborn, Pacific Air Force Office of History, 2011-01-01 An almost exhaustive volume of literature has described and analyzed the Japanese attack on the United States fleet at Pearl Harbor on December 7 1941 Yet despite the key role played by Japanese dominance of the air space over Oahu little has been published on the role of the Army Air Forces and its unpreparedness to accomplish its air defense mission In addition too few are aware of the nature and extent of the damage the Hawaiian Air Force sustained that day 7 December 1941 The Air Force Story recounts the tale of this valiant but outgunned and outmanned unit even as it attempts to explain why all of its available aircraft were unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base why all radar stations shut down on the morning of the attack and above all why the American air arm including ground observers and antiaircraft units proved unable to protect the fleet The book begins with a look at the overall position of the Hawaiian Air Force before December 7 its leadership assigned personnel and aircraft and air defense system Next it examines in detail the three main air fields on Oahu Hickam Wheeler and Bellows and their duty training equipment and morale It then describes the actual attack from the perspective of each of the bases and concludes with a post mortem of the aftermath Stirring personal accounts of the attack and the courageous reaction of Army Air Forces personnel in the face of overwhelming odds bring home the terrible reality of total war In one case a witness describes pausing to lace in the lining of his World War I vintage helmet a stark example of how unprepared American forces were that day In another vignette this time of a rare victory an antiaircraft unit shoots down two Japanese planes and almost downs an American B 17 7 December 1941 The Air Force Story is an indispensable account of a forgotten aspect of one of America's greatest military defeats and a significant contribution to the continuing debate on military preparedness prior to Pearl Harbor As such it is a must read for scholars and World War II buffs 7 December 1941 Department of Defense, U. S. Air Force (USAF), U. S.

Government, 2017-01-16 On 7 December 1941 the Day of Infamy the United States and its armed forces were plunged into the most costly war in history The Air Force story of 7 December is told in its entirety for the first time in this fascinating volume Often times the heroism and anguish of airmen at Wheeler Hickam and Bellows have been overshadowed by the main event the attack on Pearl Harbor itself 7 December 1941 The Air Force Story corrects this oversight The Japanese attack on the airfields of Oahu was an integral part of their overall plan and their objectives were achieved The Hawaiian Air Force was dealt a crippling blow despite often heroic efforts to counter the attack But we recovered quickly and soon air power was to play a major role in winning the war in the Pacific theater Today 7 December stands as an important symbol in our history The day of infamy reminds us of the need to maintain the nation's defense at a high state of readiness It also symbolizes the beginning of nearly four years of war in the Pacific in a geographical area stretching from the Aleutians to Australia Few people understand why the Hawaiian Air Force was so unprepared to accomplish its air defense mission or realize the extent of the damage and casualties it sustained on that Day of Infamy This book is an attempt to remedy that situation and the events and actions of the US Army Air Forces on 7 December are told in the following pages In this writing we have attempted to answer several important questions Why was the Imperial Japanese Navy able to devastate the Hawaiian Air Force with little to no opposition Why was the American air arm with over 200 aircraft including long range bombers six radar stations a trained ground observer unit and extensive antiaircraft weapons units unable to perform its primary job of protecting the fleet Why were all available aircraft unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base Why were the radar stations shut down at 0700 on the morning of the attack Where was the central fighter control unit and why was it not activated prior to the attack To a large extent this work is based on primary source documentation We have included numerous anecdotes from firsthand accounts of individuals who were stationed at Hawaiian Air Force installations prior to and during the attack They provide insight into military life during an assignment in Paradise which turned into a Hell in Paradise on 7 December 1941 We hope these tales of horror heroism fear and even humor bring to life the events of that day Our story begins with a look at the overall position of the Hawaiian Air Force before that fateful morning its leadership assigned personnel and aircraft and air defense system Next we examine in detail the three main airfields on Oahu Hickam Wheeler and Bellows to determine what duty was like at these installations training activities the condition of equipment and morale of the men We then go into the actual attack first describing the overall action then detailing what occurred at each of the major bases concluding with a discussion of events that took place after the attack

December 7 1941 was by an assessment a devastating day The Hawaiian Air Force suffered a crippling blow but the genesis of recovery and final victory over the enemy emerged in the valor of those who weathered the onslaught and fought back with everything they had In the 50 years since then the attack has become a faded memory for some and to many members of the younger generation just another moment in history It deserves better understanding and commemoration however for this sudden damaging strike on our forces marked the beginning of America s involvement in a terrible global war that was massive in scope and destruction Literature on the 7 December 1941 Japanese attack that launched the United States into World War II is extensive Japan s primary objective that day was to cripple the US Fleet anchored at Pearl Harbor and the Navy s experience during the attack has been chronicled in detail Control of the air over the island of Oahu was essential to the success of the attack but documentation on Army Air Forces involvement has been sparse and often fragmented Consequently few people understand why the Hawaiian Air Force was so unprepared to accomplish its air defense mission or realize the extent of the damage and casualties it sustained on that Day of Infamy This book is an attempt to remedy that situation and the events and actions of the US Army Air Forces on 7 December are told in this publication In this writing several important question are addressed Why was the Imperial Japanese Navy able to devastate the Hawaiian Air Force with little or no opposition Why was the

American air arm with over 200 aircraft including long range bombers six radar stations a trained ground observer unit and extensive antiaircraft weapons units unable to perform its primary job of protecting the fleet Why are all available aircraft unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base Why were the radar stations shut down at 0700 on the morning of the attack Where was the central fighter control unit and why was it not activated prior to the attack 7

Controvich, Martin Gordon, 2004-06-24 This bibliography lists published and printed unit histories for the United States Air Force and Its Antecedents including Air Divisions Wings Groups Squadrons Aviation Engineers and the Women's Army Corps 7 December 1941 United States United States Air Forces, 2015-07-08 On 7 December 1941 the Japanese caught the Hawaiian Air Force completely by surprise Although diplomatic relations with Japan were at a standstill and many people felt war was just around the corner Hawaii attitude maintained a Conversely business as usual the Japanese understood the importance of the American Fleet stationed at Pearl Harbor and devised a plan to destroy it To reach the fleet they would need to destroy the Hawaiian Air Force To destroy this force they would need surprise and luck Japan would achieve the surprise and fate would give them the luck they required The Hawaiian Department had the forces leadership and equipment to stop the attack or at least make it very expensive But fate in a series of decisions events and personalities would step in to prevent them from ever being used The Japanese use of air power on 7 December 1941 resulted in a decisive if short lived one sided victory indeed from their perspective as decisive as any air battle that would be fought over the next four years Air Force History Publications Air Force History and Museums Program (U.S.),2008 A Magnificent

Showcase Timothy R. Keck,2014 This illustrated large format book presents the U S Air Force Art Program s depiction of the Air Force across the service s history starting with the birth of U S military aviation under the auspices of the Army It interweaves the story of the Art Program including features on artists and their thoughts on significant works with the history of the birth and growth of the Air Force itself The volume includes a foreword by Gen Mark A Welsh III the current Air Force Chief of Staff who calls the book a celebration that records how the connection between Airmen and artists began how this relationship evolved and how artists have documented Air Force operations over the decades This publication would make a great coffee table book The author Dr Timothy R Keck spent his career in the Air Force History program and championed the Air Force Art Program while serving as command historian of Pacific Air Forces He retired as the Air Force senior historian in 2012 This historic art reference work may appeal to current airmen veterans and members of the general public with an interest in the history of air power particularly as it is portrayed in Air Force Additionally art students and libraries with art history and military collections may also be interested in this work A suitable companion work published by the United States Army includes the following In the Line of Duty Army Art 1965 2014 can be found at this link <https://bookstore.gpo.gov/products/sku/008-029-00579-4> Other products published by the United States Air Force can be found at this link <https://bookstore.gpo.gov/agency/888> *U.
