A Dictionary of Selected Synonyms in the Principal Indo-European Languages Carl Darling Buck, 2008-07-03 Originally published in 1949 and appearing now for the first time in a paperbound edition, Buck's Dictionary remains an indispensable tool for diachronic analysis of the Indo-European languages. Arranged according to the meaning of words, the work contains more than 1,000 groupings of synonyms from the principal Indo-European languages. Buck first tabulates the words describing a particular concept and then discusses their etymological and semantic history, tracing changes in meaning of the root words as well as presenting cases indicating which of the older forms have been replaced by expressions of colloquial or foreign origin.

The Zoological Record, 1993 Tools of the Profession Special Libraries Association, 1991 Mammalia, 1991 Walford's Guide to Reference Material: Science and technology Albert John Walford, 1993 Cette bibliographie commentée touche tous les domaines du savoir humain soit de l'Art à la Zoologie. Elle signale les ouvrages les plus importants soit des bibliographies, des index, des encyclopédies, des dictionnaires, des guides, des revues, etc. dont le support d'information est soit du papier, soit un CD-ROM, soit une base de données en ligne, directe, soit un microforme, etc. L'objectif du guide Walford est de devenir la source d'information sur tout type de référence, nonobstant le support technique.

Vulvae, Eyes, Snake Heads László Kovács, Gyula Radócz, 2008 Initially conceived as an attempt to disprove the idea that cowrie shells served as currency during the period of the Hungarian invasion in the Carpathian basin, 10th century AD, this study has grown into something much larger.

Collaborative Translation and Multi-Version Texts in Early Modern Europe Belén Bistué, 2016-05-23 Focusing on team translation and the production of multilingual editions and on the difficulties these techniques created for Renaissance translation theory, this book offers a study of textual practices that were widespread in medieval and Renaissance Europe but have been excluded from translation and literary history. The author shows how collaborative and multilingual translation practices challenge the theoretical reflections of translators who persistently call for a translation text that offers a single univocal version and maintains unity of style. In order to explore this tension, Bistué discusses multi-version texts in both manuscript and print from a diverse variety of genres: the Scriptures, astrological and astronomical treatises, herbals, goliardic poems, pamphlets, the Greek and Roman classics, humanist grammars, geography treatises, pedagogical dialogues, proverb collections, and romances. Her analyses pay careful attention to both European vernaculars and classical languages, including Arabic, which played a central role in the intense translation activity carried out in medieval Spain. Comparing actual translation texts and strategies with the forceful theoretical demands for unity that characterize the reflections of early modern translators the author challenges some of the assumptions frequently made in translation and literary analysis The book contributes to the understanding of early modern discourses and writing practices including the emerging theoretical discourse on translation and the writing of narrative fiction both of which as Bistu shows define themselves against the models of collaborative translation and multi version texts
