Seven Years In Southern Abyssinia:

Seven Years in Southern Abyssinia Arnold Wienholt Hodson, 1927 Seven Years in Southern Abyssinia ... Edited by C. Leonard Leese. [With Plates.] Sir Arnold Wienholt HODSON, Charles Leonard LEESE, 1927 Seven Years in Southern Abyssinia Sir Arnold Wienholt Hodson, 2018-12-01 CAPTAIN HODSON was sent in 1914 to establish the first British Consulate in Southern Abyssinia his immediate purpose being to safeguard the timid Boran tribes and the elephants of Kenya Colony against further raids across the border His appointment was agreed to with some reluctance on the part of the Ethiopian government partly because it was a reflection on that government's capacity to control the acts of its own peoples but largely because of the ingrained and not altogether unfounded suspicion that all such appointments are symptomatic of the desire of Europeans to increase their influence in the last and only indigenous independent State in Africa To add to Capt Hodson's difficulties he increased suspicion of his motives by having to enter Abyssinia from the south the railway from Jubito to Addis Ababa was not then constructed as there is a legend among the peoples of Abyssinia that it is from the south that the white man will eventually overrun their country The fact that it took the author nearly six years to establish his consulate although the ruler at Addis Ababa ostensibly favoured the project from the outset is not a reflection upon his courage negotiating skill or determination but an indication of the state of chaos of the country and the contempt for Europeans which existed The Statesman's Year-Book M. Epstein, 2016-12-28 The classic reference work that provides annually updated information on the countries of the world The Statesman's Year-book, 1928 The Statesman's Year-Book Mortimer Epstein, 2016-12-23 The classic reference work that provides annually updated information on the countries of the world Dynamics and Diversity Ian Scoones, 2010-09-23 Soils are critical to agriculture and in turn to food supply and livelihoods Sustainable management of soils is crucial for a large proportion of the population of Africa Contrary to many claims soil fertility is improved and managed successfully by small scale farmers there Careful studies from widely different areas reveal how closely bound up soil management is with complex social cultural and ecological factors requiring a far more subtly tuned approach to development policy and practice This work is a study of how the context of livelihood systems has to inform development policy and practice Letters from the Horn of Africa, 1923-1942 Christian Curle, 2009-04-22 After brief service in the Gordon Highlanders as part of the Army of Occupation of the Rhine post Great War Sandy Curle sought more adventurous soldiering and in 1923 was seconded to the Kings African Rifles KAR Aged 23 he found himself in remotest Somaliland in sole charge and the only European for miles At one point delirious with typhoid he was only saved by the surprise visit of an Indian doctor Later he served in Kenya and undertook numerous military expeditions In 1929 Curle joined the Colonial Service again in Somaliland and Ethiopia He witnessed the Italians aggression which led to their invasion of Ethiopia in 1935 A spell in Tanganyika as a District Officer followed and on the outbreak of war he rejoined the KAR and was attached to the Somaliland Camel Corps when the Italians invaded Hopelessly outnumbered

Sandy and his men withdrew to Kenya by troopship His next assignment was to raise train and command a battalion of Ethiopian irregulars Curles Irregulars and with these he led the reoccupation of Ethiopia winning the DSO and Ethiopian Military Medal In 1966 Curle was one of 25 veterans invited by Emperor Haile Selassie to celebrate the 25th Anniversary of the liberation from Italian rule This is a vivid and fascinating collection of correspondence covering some 30 years of war and uncertain peace
