Remaking the Chinese City Joseph Esherick, 2000 Annotation Collects in one place some of the most interesting and exciting new work on Chinese urban history Remaking Chinese Urban Form Duanfang Lu, 2006-09-27 In this pioneering study of contemporary Chinese urban form Duanfang Lu provides an analysis of how Chinese society constructed itself through the making and remaking of its built environment She shows that as China's quest for modernity created a perpetual scarcity as both a social reality and a national imagination the realization of planning ideals was postponed The work unit the socialist enterprise or institute gradually developed from workplace to social institution which integrated work housing and social services The Chinese city achieved a unique geography made up in large part of self contained work units Remaking Chinese Urban Form provides an important reference for academics and students conducting research on China It will be a key source for courses on Asia in architecture urban planning geography sociology and anthropology at both the graduate and undergraduate level The insightful yet accessible introduction to urban China will also be of interest to architects urban designers and planners as well as general audience who wish to learn about contemporary Chinese society The Intellectual Foundations of Chinese Modernity Edmund S. K. Fung, 2010-03-22 In the early twentieth century China was on the brink of change Different ideologies those of radicalism conservatism liberalism and social democracy were much debated in political and intellectual circles Whereas previous works have analyzed these trends in isolation Edmund S K Fung shows how they related to one another and how intellectuals in China engaged according to their cultural and political persuasions The author argues that it is this interrelatedness and interplay between different schools of thought that are central to the understanding of Chinese modernity for many of the debates that began in the Republican era still resonate in China today The book charts the development of these ideologies and explores the work and influence of the intellectuals who were associated with them In its challenge to previous scholarship and the breadth of its approach the book makes a major contribution to the study of Chinese political philosophy and intellectual history Making an Urban Public Christina Jiménez, 2019-05-15 Written as a social history of urbanization and popular politics this book reinserts the public and the city into current debates about citizenship urban development state regulation and modernity in the turn of the century Mexico Rooted in thousands of pages of written correspondence between city residents and local authorities mostly with the city council of Morelia the rhetoric and arguments of resident and city council dialogues often highlighted a person's or group's contributions to the public good effectively positioning petitioners as deserving and contributing members of the urban public Making an Urban Public tells the story of how Morelia's residents particular those from popular groups and poor circumstances claimed and often gained basic rights to the city including the right to both participate in and benefit from the city's public spaces its consumer and popular cultures its modernized infrastructure and services its rhetorical promises around good government and effective policing its dense networks of community and its countless opportunities for negotiating to forward one's agenda and its urban promise for a better life

Writing Beijing Yiran Zheng, 2016-04-29 One of the oldest cities in the world Beijing was an imperial capital for centuries After the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949 Beijing became not only the political center of the new communist country but also the signifier of socialist ideology and revolutionary culture Now in the 21st century Beijing embodies global conflicts and global connections Over the course of the last century then Beijing moved from the quintessential traditional capital to the symbol of communist urban form and finally to a cosmopolitan metropolis These three stages in the history of Beijing and its shifting representations are the topic of this study Like other capitals Beijing is much more than its physical entity It also functions as a concept a representation As city planners have and continue to present Beijing to the world as a model the fluctuating images of Beijing have become solidified in urban space Today the urban form of Beijing juxtaposes diverse spaces that span centuries embodying the various representations of the city by its planners in different eras These representations of space also provide possibilities for writers to rethink and rebuild the city in their literary works Chinese writers and filmmakers often essentialize those urban spaces by making them symbols of different urban cultures the old houses representing traditional patriarchal Chinese culture while soviet style buildings reflect revolutionary culture Finally the more recent sprouting of apartments condos and townhouses stands for the invasion of western modernity and provides evidence of global capitalism in contemporary China Inspired by Henri Lefebvre this study establishes a framework that connects urban spaces representations of space to writers and literary productions representational space I analyze the three major urban spatial forms of traditional communist and globalized Beijing and examine what these urban spaces mean to Chinese writers and filmmakers as well as how they use them to configure particular images of Beijing I argue that these different configurations are actually the projections of those writers and filmmakers own cultural imaginations they provoke a form of emotional catharsis and also produce alternative visions of the cityscape

Knowledge, Power, and Networks Cécile Armand, Christian Henriot, Huei-min Sun, 2022-09-12 In the past decades the world has watched the rise of China as an economic and military power and the emergence of Chinese transnational elites What may seem like an entirely new phenomenon marks the revival of a trend initiated at the end of the Qing The redistribution of power wealth and knowledge among the newly formed elites matured during the Republican period This volume demonstrates both the difficulty and the value of rethinking the elites in modern China It establishes that the study of the dynamic tensions within the elite and among elite groups in this epochal era is within reach if we are prepared to embrace forms of historical inquiry that integrate the abundant and even limitless historical resources and to engage with the rich repertoire of digital techniques instruments available and question our previous research paradigms This renewed approach brings historical research closer to an integrative data rich history of modern China

Architecture and the Landscape of Modernity in China before 1949 Edward Denison, 2017-02-17 This book explores China's encounter with architecture and modernity in the tumultuous epoch before Communism an encounter that was mediated not by a singular notion of modernism emanating from the west but that was uniquely multifarious deriving from a variety of sources both from the west and importantly from the east The heterogeneous origins of modernity in China are what make its experience distinctive and its architectural encounters exceptional These experiences are investigated through a re-evaluation of established knowledge of the subject within the wider landscape of modern art practices in China The study draws on original archival and photographic material from different artistic genres and architecturally concentrates on China's engagement with the west through the treaty ports and leased territories the emergence of architecture as a profession in China and Japan's omnipresence not least in Manchuria which reached its apogee in the puppet state of Manchukuo The study's geographically temporally and architecturally inclusive approach framed by the concept of multiple modernities questions the application of conventional theories of modernity or post colonialism to the Chinese situation By challenging conventional modernist historiography that has marginalised the experiences of the west's other for much of the last century this book proposes different ways of grappling with and comprehending the distinction and complexity of China's experiences and its encounter with architectural modernity

The Rise of Cantonese Opera Wing Chung Ng, 2015-05-15 Defined by its distinct performance style stage practices and regional and dialect based identities Cantonese opera originated as a traditional art form performed by itinerant companies in temple courtyards and rural market fairs In the early 1900s however Cantonese opera began to capture mass audiences in the commercial theaters of Hong Kong and Guangzhou a transformation that changed it forever Wing Chung Ng charts Cantonese opera's confrontations with state power nationalist discourses and its challenge to the ascendancy of Peking opera as the country's preeminent national theatre Mining vivid oral histories and heretofore untapped archival sources Ng relates how Cantonese opera evolved from a fundamentally rural tradition into urbanized entertainment distinguished by a reliance on capitalization and celebrity performers He also expands his analysis to the transnational level showing how waves of Chinese emigration to Southeast Asia and North America further re-shaped Cantonese opera into a vibrant part of the ethnic Chinese social life and cultural landscape in the many corners of a sprawling diaspora
