Monstrous Fantasies Leila K. Norako, 2024-08-15 Monstrous Fantasies asks why medieval romances reimagining the crusades ending in a Christian victory circulated in England with such abundance after the 1291 Muslim reconquest of Acre the last of the Latin crusader states in the Holy Land and what these texts reveal about the cultural anxieties of late medieval England Leila K Norako highlights the impact that the Ottoman victory and subsequent massacre of Christian prisoners at the battle of Nicopolis in 1396 had on intensifying the popularity of what she calls recovery romance These two episodes inspired a sense of urgency over the fate of the Holy Land and of Latin Christendom itself resulting in the proliferation of romances in which crusading English kings like Richard I and anachronistic legends like King Arthur not only reconquered Jerusalem but committed genocidal violence against the Muslims These romances which as Norako argues also influenced Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales conjure fantasies of an ascendant global Christendom by rehearsing acts of conquest and cultural annihilation that were impossible to realize in the late Middle Ages Emphasizing the tension in these texts between nostalgia and anticipation that fuels their narrative momentum Monstrous Fantasies also explores how the cultural desires for European and Christian hegemony that recovery romances versified were revived in the wake of the so called wars on terror in the twenty first century in such films as Kingdom of Heaven and American Sniper

Before Orientalism Kim M. Phillips, 2013-11-14 A distinct European perspective on Asia emerged in the late Middle Ages Early reports of a homogeneous India of marvels and monsters gave way to accounts written by medieval travelers that indulged readers curiosity about far flung landscapes and cultures without exhibiting the attitudes evident in the later writings of aspiring imperialists Mining the accounts of more than twenty Europeans who made or claimed to have made journeys to Mongolia China India Sri Lanka and Southeast Asia between the mid thirteenth and early sixteenth centuries Kim Phillips reconstructs a medieval European vision of Asia that was by turns critical neutral and admiring In offering a cultural history of the encounter between medieval Latin Christians and the distant East Before Orientalism reveals how Europeans prevailing preoccupations with food and eating habits gender roles sexualities civility and the foreign body helped shape their perceptions of Asian peoples and societies Phillips gives particular attention to the texts known or likely audiences the cultural settings within which they found a foothold and the broader impact of their descriptions while also considering the motivations of their writers She reveals in rich detail responses from European travelers that ranged from pragmatism to wonder Fear of military might admiration for high standards of civic life and court culture and even delight in foreign magnificence rarely assumed the kind of secular Eurocentric superiority that would later characterize Orientalism Placing medieval writing on the East in the context of an emergent Europe whose explorers sought to learn more than to rule Before Orientalism complicates our understanding of medieval attitudes toward the foreign

Bridging the Medieval-Modern Divide James Muldoon, 2016-04-15 The debate about when the middle ages ended and the modern era began has long been a staple of the historical literature In order to further this debate and illuminate the implications of a longue dur e approach to the history of the Reformation this collection offers a selection of essays that address the medieval modern divide Covering a broad range of topics encompassing legal social cultural theological and political history the volume asks fundamental questions about how we regard history and what historians can learn from colleagues working in other fields that may not at first glance appear to offer any obvious links By focussing on the concept of the medieval modern divide in particular the relation between the Middle Ages and the Reformation each essay examines how a medievalist deals with a specific topic or issue that is also attracting the attention of Reformation scholars In so doing it underlines the fact that both medievalists and modernists are often involved in bridging the medieval modern divide but are inclined to construct parallel bridges that end between the two starting points but do not necessarily meet As a result the volume challenges assumptions about the strict periodization of history and suggest that a more flexible approach will yield interesting historical insights

Shaping Identities in a Holy Land Gil Fishhof, 2023-12-21 In the 88 years between its establishment by the victorious armies of the First Crusade and its collapse following the disastrous defeat at Hattin the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem was the site of vibrant artistic and architectural activity As the crusaders rebuilt some of Christendom s most sacred churches or embellished others with murals and mosaics a unique and highly original art was created Focusing on the sculptural mosaic and mural cycles adorning some of the most important shrines in the Kingdom such as the Church of the Holy Sepulchre The Basilica of the

Ward, 2014-12-17 Mirage of the Saracen analyzes the growth of monasticism and Christian settlements in the Sinai Peninsula through the early seventh century C E Walter D Ward examines the ways in which Christian monks justified occupying the Sinai through creating associations between Biblical narratives and Sinai sites while assigning uncivilized negative and oppositional traits to the indigenous nomadic population whom the Christians pejoratively called Saracens By writing edifying tales of hostile nomads and the ensuing martyrdom of the monks Christians not only reinforced their claims to the spiritual benefits of asceticism but also provoked the Roman authorities to enhance defense of pilgrimage routes to the Sinai When Muslim armies later began conquering the Middle East Christians also labeled these new conquerors as Saracens connecting Muslims to these pre Islamic representations This timely and relevant work builds a historical account of interreligious encounters in the ancient world showing the Sinai as a crucible for forging long lasting images of both Christians and Muslims some of which endure today Europe and the Islamic World John Tolan, Gilles Veinstein, Henry Laurens, 2015-11-17 A sweeping history of Islam and the West from the seventh century to today Europe and the Islamic World sheds much needed light on the shared roots of Islamic and Western cultures and on the richness of their inextricably intertwined histories refuting once and for all the misguided notion of a clash of civilizations between the Muslim world and Europe In this landmark book three eminent historians bring to life the complex and tumultuous relations between Genoans and Tunisians Alexandrians and the people of Constantinople Catalans and Maghrebis the myriad groups and individuals whose stories reflect the common cultural intellectual and religious heritage of Europe and Islam Since the seventh century when the armies of Constantinople and Medina fought for control of Syria and Palestine there has been ongoing contact between the Muslim world and the West This sweeping history vividly recounts the wars and the crusades the alliances and diplomacy commerce and the slave trade technology transfers and the intellectual and artistic exchanges Here readers are given an unparalleled introduction to key periods and events including the Muslim conquests the collapse of the Byzantine Empire the commercial revolution of the medieval Mediterranean the intellectual and cultural achievements of Muslim Spain the crusades and Spanish reconquest the rise of the Ottomans and their conquest of a third of Europe European colonization and decolonization and the challenges

Cultural Transfers in Dispute Bee Yun, 2011-08-08 Our conception of cultures and cultural change has altered dramatically in recent decades no longer do we understand cultures as isolated units rather we see them as hybrid formations constantly engaged in a multidirectional process of exchange and influence with other cultures Yet the very process by which we represent these cultural transfers is itself subject to cultural political and ideological conditions that affect our understanding acknowledgment and representation of them Built around concrete examples of controversial representations of cultural transfer from Asia the Arab world and Europe Cultural Transfers in Dispute presents a critical self reflection on the scholarly practices that underpin our attempts to study and describe other cultures

Islam and Papal Power in Late Medieval and Early Modern Europe Kate Waggoner Karchner, 2025-03-19 Islam and Papal Power in Late Medieval and Early Modern Europe traces the influential history of another book Riccoldo da Montecroce's Contra legem Sarracenorum Around 1301 a Dominican missionary named Riccoldo da Montecroce wrote a treatise on the Qur'an arguing against the validity of the Muslim faith Over the next two hundred years Europeans read copied translated and circulated Riccoldo's work more than any other text on Islam This study overviews and contextualizes that popularity in order to analyze Christian understandings of Islam in early modern Europe Analysing the thirty four surviving manuscript copies this book studies the way the text was transcribed the notes that readers made in the margins and the contexts in which it was copied Critically this book also puts the transmission analysis into the broader context of major European historical developments This context reveals that Contra legem became a tool for Europeans who linked fear of the Ottoman Empire to instability within the Church Specifically readers used Riccoldo's descriptions of the dangers of the Qur'an to conflate the Ottoman Empire with a broader Islamic threat to Christian society Such positioning helped readers to substantiate the divine authority of the western Church and especially the papacy as a bulwark against this threat This book will be of interest to scholars working on interreligious dialogue and Christian Muslim relations in medieval and early modern Europe and the Mediterranean It will appeal to historians of religion scholars of late medieval and early modern thought and students of pre and early modern history at the upper undergraduate and graduate levels

Authorship, Worldview, and Identity in Medieval Europe Christian Raffensperger, 2022-03-03 What did medieval authors know about their world Were they parochial and focused on just their monastery town or kingdom Or were they aware of the broader medieval Europe that modern historians write about This collection brings the focus back to medieval authors to see how they described their world While we see that each author certainly had their own biases the vast majority of them did not view the world as constrained to their small piece of it Instead they talked about the wider world and often they had informants or textual sources that informed them about the world even if they did not visit it themselves This volume shows that they also used similar ideas to create space and identity whether talking about the desert the holy land or food practices in their texts By examining medieval authors and their own perceptions of their world this collection offers a framework for discussions of medieval Europe in the twenty first century
