After the Girls Club Carole Bell Ford, 2010-06-22 After World War II the Girls Club of Brooklyn New York became both home and safe haven to orphaned teenagers who were Holocaust survivors

They are a small group but taken together these women's stories represent the broad range of experiences that most Jews suffered during and after the Holocaust. Some endured the ghettos and camps. Some survived in hiding with partisans or in the remote far eastern reaches of the Soviet Union. Consequently, this collective personal history enriched with relevant information about places, people, events, and issues tells not only their story but also the story of tens of thousands of child survivors. The work of scholars from various disciplines and genres provides background information and historical detail as this book traces the women's experiences from their childhood days in pre-war Europe to the present. Contrary to what early literature on child survivors predicted, they built successful lives in America.

Jewish Translation - Translating Jewishness Magdalena Waligórska, Tara Kohn, 2018-05-22. This interdisciplinary volume looks at one of the central cultural practices within the Jewish experience: translation. With contributions from literary and cultural scholars, historians, and scholars of religion, the book considers different aspects of Jewish translation, starting from the early translations of the Torah to the modern Jewish experience of migration, state building, and life in the Diaspora. The volume addresses the question of how Jews have used translation to pursue different cultural and political agendas, such as Jewish nationalism, the development of Yiddish as a literary language, and the collection of Holocaust testimonies. It also addresses how non-Jews have translated elements of the Judaic tradition to create an image of the Other. Covering a wide span of contexts, including religion, literature, photography, music, and folk practices, and featuring an interview section with authors and translators, the volume will be of interest not only to scholars of Jewish studies, translation, and cultural studies but also to a wider, interested audience.

On Listening to Holocaust Survivors: Beyond Testimony Henry Greenspan, 2010-11. Challenges conventional wisdom and wisely transforms the process of discerning and responding to what survivors of the Holocaust and other genocides have to say.

Inscribing the Other Sander L. Gilman, 1991-01-01. Inscribing the Other focuses on great authors who have, by birth or choice or both, found themselves outside the mainstream of their culture but who have still wished to address it: Goethe, Freud, Wilde, Heine, Nietzsche, and Isaac Bashevis Singer, among others. In thirteen probing, provocative essays, Sander L. Gilman reinterprets their writing as it reveals their efforts to come to terms with their real or imagined sense of difference. The chapters treat many themes and problems, ranging widely from the romantic notion of the transcendent artist to the twentieth-century artists in exile and employing the perspectives of psychiatry, aesthetics, photography, politics, and the history of mentalities. The fate of Jewish writers in modern Germany or of Yiddish writers whose language is devalued in European culture is explored. The theme of difference and its artistic and intellectual manifestations runs throughout the book, which includes discussions of Goethe's and Wilde's homosexuality, Nietzsche's madness, Heine's refusal to be photographed, and Primo Levi's internment at Auschwitz, as well as an interview with Singer. In a frank autobiographical introduction, Gilman attempts to understand his own writing as an exercise in inscribing the Other, in dealing with his own sense of difference through artistic creation.

Holocaust, 1998. A resource guide, a comprehensive listing of media for further study.

Disappearing Traces Dorota Glowacka, 2012-10-01 In Disappearing Traces Dorota Glowacka examines the tensions between the ethical and aesthetic imperatives in literary, artistic, and philosophical works about the Holocaust in a search for new ways to understand the traumatic past and its impact on the present. She engages with the work of leading 20th-century philosophers and theorists including Levinas, Benjamin Lyotard, and Derrida to consider the role of language in the construction and transmission of traumatic memories, the relation between self-identity and the act of bearing witness, and the ethical implications of representing trauma. Glowacka's work draws on a wide range of discourses and disciplines, bringing into conversation various genres of writing and artistic production. It reveals the need to find innovative idioms and new means of engaging with the past and to create alliances between different disciplines and modes of representing the past that transform and transcend existing paradigms of representation.
