the Nazi regime experienced oppression and made decisions embedded within families Even after the war sole survivors often described their losses and rebuilt their lives with a distinct focus on family Yet this perspective is lacking in academic analyses In this work scholars from the United States Israel and across Europe bring a variety of backgrounds and disciplines to their study of the Holocaust and its aftermath from the family perspective Drawing on research from Belarus to Great Britain and examining both Jewish and Romani families they demonstrate the importance of recognizing how people continued to function within family units broadly defined throughout the war and afterward

Saving Our Survivors Rachel Deblinger, 2025-05-06 How did American Jews come to learn about the Holocaust in the immediate aftermath of the war What kinds of images and representations of Holocaust survivors first circulated in America when most Jewish survivors were still stuck in European displaced persons camps Drawing on communal records and previously unexamined cultural materials Saving Our Survivors details the kinds of narratives that inspired American Jewish action in the wake of the Holocaust and argues that American Jewish communal life became a significant site of knowledge formation and dissemination about the Holocaust Through organizational campaign materials public speeches appeal letters brochures posters radio broadcasts and short films

American Jews were compelled to act as heroes saving Jewish lives and a Jewish future Bringing postwar communal narratives into the longer history of Holocaust memory in America challenges our understanding of what Holocaust narratives look and sound like and invites us to consider the relationship between humanitarian aid and the narratives they employ to inspire action By expanding our understanding of how stories about the Holocaust became part of an American discourse and considering multiple forms of Holocaust survivor accounts Saving Our Survivors highlights the messy diffuse and contested nature of memory construction in the immediate aftermath of the Holocaust as well as each new tragedy we confront
