Schools Joseph P. McDonald,1996-11-22 For five years McDonald charted the progress of ten schools in the Coalition of Essential Schools as they immersed themselves in the hard work of school reform He also visited many other schools both elementary and secondary in an attempt to understand serious school reform and its prospects He concludes that school reform requires redesign in three critical areas The first is a shift in the ordinary and often tacit beliefs of the people who work in schools the communities that support them and even the children who attend them The second area which McDonald dubs the wiring arena involves internal communication and power arrangements The third area called tuning involves connecting the school to the needs interests and values of the communities it serves Redesigning Teacher Education

Alan R. Tom,1997-01-01 Explores the shortcomings of teacher education and proposes design principles for rethinking teacher preparation Establishes a reform agenda for teacher education faculties Alan Tom is among the best at relating important issues in teacher education and a critical reading of the literature with his own professional experience This book is ambitious It lives up to the claim of examining political and institutional problems along with conceptual and intellectual ones This is something few teacher educators attempt and is a critical area to open up for sustained analysis Drawing upon events from his career as a teacher educator Alan R Tom candidly analyzes the predominant criticisms of teacher education and rejects the common tendency to infer the teacher education curriculum from such ideas as metaphors for teaching or knowledge He proposes eleven design principles to serve as a reform agenda including creating programs capable of self renewal having faculty model the desired image and skills of teaching and rethinking the sequence of practice and theory Each principle identifies a differing dimension for the conceptual and structural redesign of teacher preparation Four specific change strategies are evaluated as well task force top down piloting and family style The low status of teacher educators and the excessive regulation of teacher education are also examined as is the failure to give adequate attention to the administrative organization for teacher education
