A Religious Guide to Europe Daniel M. Madden, 1975-01-01

Religion in Modern Europe Grace Davie, 2000-08-03

Religion in Modern Europe examines religion as a form of collective memory. This is a memory held in place by Europe's institutional churches, educational systems and the mass media, all of which are themselves responding to rapid social and economic change. Europe's religious memory is approached in the following ways: as vicarious, a particularly European characteristic; as precarious, especially among young people; and as it is portrayed by the media. The memory may fragment, be disputed and in extreme cases disappear. Alternatives may emerge. The challenge for European societies is to affirm healthy mutations in religious memory and discourage others. The book also examines the increasing diversity of Europe's religious life. European Societies Series. Series Editor: Colin Crouch. Very few of the existing sociological texts which compare different European societies on specific topics are accessible to a broad range of scholars and students. The European Societies series will help fill this gap in the literature and attempt to answer questions such as: Is there really such a thing as a European model of society? Do the economic and political integration processes of the European Union also imply convergence in more general aspects of social life, like family or religious behaviour? What do the societies of Western Europe have in common with those further to the east? This series will cover the main social institutions, although not every author will cover the full range of European countries. As well as surveying existing knowledge in a way that will be useful to students, each book will also seek to contribute to our growing knowledge of what remains in many respects a sociologically unknown continent.

Religions, Beliefs and Education in the European Court of Human Rights Nigel Fancourt, 2024-02-20. This book represents an exposition of judicial pedagogies as a new concept and discusses juridical educational issues in detail through an analysis of the educational claims and assumptions of judges' decisions in the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR). It sheds light on how, within courtrooms around the world, judges are increasingly being asked to decide upon issues of religion and belief in schooling, whether about admissions policies, curriculum planning or pupils and teachers' dress and jewellery. With key human rights principles at stake, these proceedings are often fraught, clashing with strong opinions about education and schooling. Focusing on decisions made in the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), the author considers how the supranational court looks at these issues and considers the ECtHR's role within the European Education space. Drawing upon research and scholarship surrounding these questions, the book surveys a series of educational issues, including curriculum and assessment, and takes a comparative approach in the discussion of case studies to demonstrate the variety and depth of judges' thinking. Thus, rather than considering the national or supranational legal principles and questions as jurisprudential issues typically about religion or human rights, it reviews them from an educational perspective as folk theories of teaching and learning. Finally, it considers the implications of a theory of judicial pedagogy for the courts' educational competence in deciding on these matters for education and educational policy research, the European education space, legal scholarship and for legal and judicial education Developing a novel and innovative approach to the pedagogies at play in a courtroom and providing fresh insights into the courts as agents of social change it will appeal to scholars and researchers working across the disciplines of education law and religious studies

The European Wars of Religion Wolfgang Palaver,Harriet Rudolph,Dietmar Regensburger,2016-12-05 In recent years religion has resurfaced amongst academics in many ways replacing class as the key to understanding Europe s historical development This has resulted in an explosion of studies revisiting issues of religious change confessional violence and holy war during the early modern period But the interpretation of the European wars of religion still remains largely defined by national boundaries tied to specific processes of state building as well as nation building In order to more thoroughly interrogate these concepts and assumptions this volume focusses on terms repeatedly used and misused in public debates such as religious violence and holy warfare within the context of military conflicts commonly labelled religious wars The chapters not only focus on the role of religion but also on the emerging state as a driver of the escalation of violence in the so called age of religious war By using different methodological and theoretical approaches historians philosophers and theologians engage in an interdisciplinary debate that contributes to a better understanding of the religio political situation of early modern Europe and the interpretation of violent conflicts interpreted as religious conflicts today By adopting a multi disciplinary approach new and innovative perspectives are opened up that question if in fact religion was a primary driving force behind these conflicts
