

School library positions and roles

Teacher Librarian

Teacher librarians are responsible for leading the design, management and evaluation of all aspects of library operations. They teach classes, work with students on information and digital literacy-related tasks, collaborate with teaching staff and lead initiatives to enhance teaching and learning. They are specialists in literature for young people and actively support wellbeing in schools. Teacher librarians possess high-level curriculum knowledge and pedagogical expertise and are qualified to supervise an entire library team.

Other role titles

Teacher in charge of library, Head of library, Library Manager

Qualifications

Teacher librarians hold qualifications that meet eligibility for teacher registration in respective jurisdictions, along with an ASA accredited graduate or post graduate library and information qualification¹ that includes specialisations related to the school library context.

Library Technicians

Library technicians usually work under the supervision of a teacher librarian or librarian and play a vital role in creating access to school library and information resources. Library technicians have knowledge and skills in cataloguing and the technical management of digital collections, such as ClickView, ebooks, and databases.

A library technician with a Diploma knows how to effectively use the detailed components of Library Management Systems and has knowledge and skills to effectively maintain and promote the school library collection. Library technicians are trained to contribute ideas about library design and user needs and services (both online and physical) and can take the lead in marketing the school library and developing innovations to best support teaching staff, students and the wider school community.

Other role titles

AI/Digital Library Technician

Qualifications

Library technicians hold an ASA accredited Diploma in Library and Information Studies¹, usually delivered through a TAFE institute.
