The Power of Neuroplasticity for Pastoral and Spiritual Care Kirk A. Bingham, 2014-04-10 Studies in neuroscience demonstrate that a focus on mindfulness meditation and contemplative spiritual practice has the capacity to increase our non anxious awareness and significantly lower our stress Not only is this finding of immediate importance for pastoral counselors and psychotherapists it will even necessitate a paradigm shift in the way that pastoral and spiritual practitioners approach the general care of souls The starting point for such a paradigm shift is an acknowledgement of the built in negativity bias of the brain and how certain beliefs and theological views may inadvertently reinforce the bias to the detriment of individuals and faith communities Once necessary for human survival the ingrained bias can often be excessive for today s world resulting in negatively disproportionate assessments of life events and human relationships To balance the neural predisposition toward negativity and anxious awareness it is necessary for pastoral and spiritual caregivers and those in their care to cultivate a regular contemplative meditational practice

The Power of Neuroplasticity for Pastoral and Spiritual Care focuses on the groundbreaking finding of contemporary neuroscience that the brain is built for change across the entire lifespan. It is designed to make the research accessible to and relevant for those engaged in the work of pastoral and spiritual care in order to help clients and congregants effect lasting and transformative changes in the mind and brain. Through the regular practice of contemplative prayer and meditation we can literally calm the stress region of the brain in order to live less anxiously and experience more fully the peace and joy of the present moment. The introduction of mindfulness and acceptance based counseling approaches will provide pastoral and spiritual practitioners with an important therapeutic framework to situate their work from which they can make more informed and effective interventions geared toward using the mind to change the brain.

Beyond Words: the Healing Power of Horses Alita H. Buzel, PhD,2016-05-06 Excerpts from Beyond Words The Healing Power of Horses The space between words is where we live with horses In the silence we are truly heard So much of our sadness our discontent our addictions and compulsions are driven by the emptiness we experience when without being aware of it we detach from our emotional selves We often mistake this emptiness as boredom anxiety hunger and or loneliness Horses in their honesty and compassion help us to reconnect to ourselves to our humanness What I have come to believe is that no matter what orientation you bring to psychotherapy or what equine certification you achieve the one variable that has been shown to be critically important is the trusting respectful and compassionate relationship that develops between therapist and client whether the therapist has two or four legs is irrelevant The goal of Beyond Words The Healing Power of Horses is to connect the advances made in the treatment and understanding of mental health issues with the knowledge we have accrued through the years about the nature of horses The key is to integrate the two professional worlds of equine specialists and psychotherapists so that each can appreciate communicate and work together to further enhance the practice of Equine Experiential Psychotherapy
