Nationalism and Conflict Management Eric Taylor Woods,Robert Schertzer,Eric Kaufmann,2013-09-13 Ethno national conflict is one of the central issues of modern politics Despite the emergence of approaches to managing it from nation building to territorial autonomy in recent years the application of these approaches has been uneven Old conflicts persist and new ones continually emerge The authors of this book contend that what is needed to drive forward the theory and practice of ethno national conflict management is a more nuanced understanding of ethnicity and nationalism The book addresses this issue by linking theories of ethnicity and nationalism to theories of conflict management Its contributors share a common goal of demonstrating that a nuanced understanding of ethnicity and nationalism can beneficially inform conflict management in theory and practice To do so they analyse both hot and cold conflict zones as well as cases that have been important in the development of the most widely used conflict management models The book is aimed at those interested in the theory and practice of ethno national conflict management as well as the study of ethnicity and nationalism It is well suited for undergraduate and advanced research students experts and policy makers This book was originally published as a special issue of Commonwealth and Comparative

Politics Alternatives in Mobilization Jóhanna Kristín Birnir, Nil Seda Şatana, 2022-05-26 What determines which identity cleavage ethnicity or religion is mobilized in political contestation be it peaceful or violent In contrast to common predictions that the greatest contention occurs where identities are fully segmented most identity conflicts in the world are between ethnic groups that share religion Alternatives in Mobilization builds on the literature about political demography to address this seeming contradiction The book proposes that variation in relative group size and intersection of cleavages help explain conundrums in the mobilization of identity across transgressive and contained political settings This theory is tested cross nationally on identity mobilization in civil war and across violent conflict in Pakistan Uganda Nepal and Turkey and peaceful electoral politics in Indonesia This book helps illustrate a more accurate and improved picture of the ethnic and religious tapestry of the world and addresses an increasing need for a better understanding of how religion contributes to conflict

Negotiating Armenian-Azerbaijani Peace Ohannes Geukjian, 2016-04-22 Conflict resolution conflict management and conflict transformations are major themes in this unique book which examines explores and analyses the mediation attempts of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in the Nagorno Karabakh conflict Ohannes Geukjian shows the most striking characteristic of a protracted internal conflict such as this is its asymmetry and explains that without meeting basic human needs like identity recognition security and participation resolving any protracted social conflict is very difficult The Armenian Azerbaijani case demonstrates how official diplomacy may not be able to solve protracted internal conflicts as without addressing the real causes of the problematic relationship attempts at peace making will always be sporadic and the space for mutual understanding and compromise shrink Geukjian shows that conflict transformation has a particular salience in asymmetric conflicts such as this where the goal is to transform unjust relationships and where a high degree of polarisation between the disputants has taken root Using the Nagorno Karabakh case this book focuses on the anatomy and causes of deadlock in negotiations and highlights the many difficulties in achieving a breakthrough examines the various aspects of territorial separatism focusing on how and why separatist movements arise. Featuring essays by leading scholars from different disciplinary perspectives, the book aims to situate the question of separatism within the broader socio-political context of the international system, arguing that a set of historical events as well as local, regional, and global dynamics have converged to provide the catalysts that often trigger separatist conflicts. In addition, the book marks progress towards a new conceptual framework for the study of territorial separatism by linking the survival of communities in international politics with the effective control of territory and the consequent creation of new polities. Separatist conflicts challenge conventional wisdom concerning conflict resolution within the context of international relations by unpacking a number of questions with regard to conflict transformation. Through the use of case studies including Cyprus, the Rakhine state in Myanmar, the Shia separatism in Iraq, the Uighurs in China, and the case of East Timor, the volume addresses key issues including the role of democracy, international law, intervention, post-conflict peacebuilding, and the creation of new political entities. The book will be of much interest to students of Intra-State Conflict, Conflict Resolution, International Law, Security Studies, and International Relations.

Preventive Diplomacy, Preventive Defense, and Conflict Resolution , 1999 Territorial Separatism in Global Politics Damien Kingsbury, Costas Laoutides, 2015-03-05 This volume

Preventing Genocide in Burundi Stephen R. Weissman, 1998. Since 1993, interethnic violence between the 15 to 20 percent Tutsi minority and the 80 to 85 percent Hutu majority in Burundi has taken an estimated 150,000 lives. The continuation of the conflict helps place tens of millions of people at risk in Central Africa and erodes the international norm against genocide. Despite considerable time and effort, the world's peacemakers have been unable to stop the bloodshed and facilitate a political settlement. An examination of the international response to the crisis furnishes valuable lessons for peacemaking in Burundi and other areas of genocidal conflict. A long-term political settlement that took adequate account of Burundian history and circumstances would have three basic characteristics: 1. a form of democratic power sharing that was more majoritarian than consociational but provided significant protection for minority security and economic interests; 2. measures to address collective fears and memories of genocide by acknowledging past crimes and fixing individual responsibility for them; and 3. impartial outside military forces sufficient to control the Burundian military until it is reformed and ethnically integrated. However, as the democratization and power sharing movements of the early 1990s indicated, a settlement is unlikely to develop without substantial international pressure and assistance. The lesson of these movements' tragic demise is that outside carrots and sticks must be focused on obtaining the engagement of all important parties, especially the powerful extremists, in compromise political negotiations.

Peaceful Intervention in Intra-State Conflicts Chanaka Talpahewa, 2016-03-03. Have we reached an end to the era of peaceful third-party intervention in conflict management and resolution? In the 1990s, with the ending of the Cold War, the intervention of third parties as a non-violent means of negotiating settlements of intra-state conflicts gained prominence, but the emphasis in the twenty-first century has been increasingly on military responses. Peaceful Intervention in Intra-State Conflicts Norwegian Involvement in the Sri Lankan Peace Process is an in-depth, impartial discussion on the background, decision-making processes, and procedures and related actions in the Norwegian facilitated peace process in Sri Lanka that gradually shifted towards a military solution It provides the reader with evidence based comprehensive analysis on the attempts of peaceful third party intervention in a complex ethno separatist intra state conflict Preventing Contemporary Intergroup Violence and Education for Conflict Resolution David A. Hamburg,1999 Islam And Violent Separatism Ashok Swain,2014-06-03 First published in 2007 Political demands for autonomy and independence by radicalized ethnic groups have recently intensified as a result of the globalization of the post Cold War world In addition to facing the challenges posed by democratization development and social movements governments everywhere are striving to manage and contain political Islam This is particularly true in Southeast Asia where the violence and instability caused by Islamic radical groups have affected the consolidation of liberal democracy in the region This volume examines the roles of the state and of civil society in three of the new democracies in Southeast Asia the Philippines Thailand and Indonesia Focussing on the way these democracies address the increased threat posed to their nation building projects by political Islam Islam and Violent Separatism makes an important contribution to the understanding of new security risks terrorism democratic consolidation and contemporary Southeast Asian politics Capturing the Complexity of Conflict Dennis J. D. Sandole,2013-09-13 The study reported in this volume is an attempt to develop a multilevel theory of violent conflict and war As such the study involves a pretheory for identifying concepts operative at each level and for explaining how the concepts relate to violent conflict and war The Northern Ireland experience of conflict and agreement Robin Wilson,2018-07-30 The Northern Ireland Experience of Conflict and Agreement presents a salutary warning to the international community against the fashionable view that there is an Irish model which can be exported to cauterise ethnic troubles around the globe The book draws on extensive archive research in London and Dublin on the 1970s power sharing experiment and on interviews with senior officials and political figures from the two capitals as well as reconciliation practitioners about the negotiation and chequered implementation of the Belfast agreement It shows how stereotyped conceptions of the problem as a product of ancient hatreds allied to solutions based on Realpolitik have failed to transform Northern Ireland from a fragile peace following the exhaustion of protracted paramilitary campaigns to genuine reconciliation The book concludes with practical proposals for constitutional reforms which would favour genuine power sharing rather than merely sharing power out and set Northern Ireland on the road to the normal civic society its long suffering residents desire It will be essential reading not only for academics and postgraduates interested in ethnic conflict but also for policy makers who confront it in practice
